TRAINS WILL BE HALTED TO HONOR RAILROAD KING

Every Wheel on Lines Harriman Controlled Will Be Stopped 5 Minutes.

65,000 MILES AFFECTED

Railway Honors for Financier Surpassed Only by Those Paid McKinley.

TO BE BURIED SUNDAY

Physicians Generally Believe Cancer Was the Cause of Death.

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—The action of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific Railroad systems in suspending operations for five minutes during the funeral of Edward H. Harriman, Sunday afternoon, will be followed by most of the other railroads in which the financier was interested and by other interests.

The Erie Railroad and the Delaware & Hudson Railroad, it was said, would join the Western Harriman lines in the stoppage of trains at the hour of the funeral, and it was thought that the Illinois Central would also show the same mark of respect.

For these five minutes on Sunday afternoon not a wheel will be turning on any part of the 15,000 miles comprising the Union and Southern Pacific systems and the same quiet may be ordered on other systems included in the 65,000 miles of railroad, which, to a greater or less degree, were under the domination of E. H. Harriman.

Unusual Honor for Citizen.

The last time such a mark of respect was shown to transportation systems of the country was on the occasion of the funeral of President McKinley. It was recalled yesterday that no such cessation of railroad operation on the scale on which it is to be done on Sunday was ever ordered for any private individual.

All the offices of the Harriman railroads in the East will be closed today until Monday. Already the flags at all points on the system are at half mast, and so also are those of the Erie Railroad.

Thus across the country the flags of the railroads are at half mast for the greatest railroad man this country or the world, for that matter, ever knew. The system of railways which he brought under his influence extends twice across the Continent, and the marks of respect will today and tomorrow be paid to his memory from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Physicians Think It Was Cancer.

Among the physicians in this city who have had wide experiences in cancerous growth, the diagnosis attributed to Dr. Streyumpell, the Vienna physician, that Mr. Harriman was afflicted with cancerous growth is generally accepted.

Carcinoma is the species of cancer in which fatalities usually occur. When a death is reported, the profession assumes that carcinoma caused it, unless another disease is stated. Carcinoma is a deep-seated disease and attacks the vitals. It lives on the tissue and death results from ulceration or from the transmission of the poison through the body by means of the glands.

Operations may eliminate carcinoma if they are performed at an early stage. In Mr. Harriman's case, in the opinion of physicians, an operation was not seriously considered until he had become too weak to survive it.

Supposition of cancer in this case was strengthened by the known symptoms displayed by Mr. Harriman and the duration of his illness, loss of appetite, indigestion, nausea, anxious expression and a noticeable pallor were symptoms of which the public had knowledge ever since Mr. Harriman's health became a matter of general concern.

Little clew to the cause of Mr. Harriman's death is given by the death certificate prepared by Dr. Lyle. It gives the cause of death as "heart failure superinduced by internal complications."

MILLIONAIRE PROSECUTOR IN HOSPITAL, POISON SUSPECTED

Pittsburg Official Had Incurred the Enmity of Under World Habitues.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Sept. 11.—William A. Blakeley, District Attorney of Allegheny County and a millionaire several times over, is dying in the Allegheny General Hospital.

Blakeley incurred the undying enmity of the under world by his wholesale prosecution of graft and grafters, and it is rumored that his condition is due to poison. Be that as it may, interests to the extent of many millions for the last 36 hours have been engaged in smothering the facts surrounding his mysterious illness. It came upon him suddenly at a political picnic and he was carried to the hospital.

It is said that 100 detectives and other officers are now working on Blakeley's case.

Blakeley is understood to be engaged to Miss Jean Oliver, daughter of United States Senator George T. Oliver.

UMPIRE CHIDED FOR DECISION BY VICE-PRESIDENT SHERMAN

He Criticises Owens for Ruling That Costs Kansas City Team the Game.

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 11.—Becoming excited over what he believed to be a bad decision at first base in the game between the Kansas City and Minneapolis teams of the American Association yesterday, Vice-President James S. Sherman, who attended the game, called Umpire Clarence Owens to his box after the inning was over and protested against the decision.

"Mr. Owens," the Vice-President is quoted as saying, "I believe your decision at first base on that man was incorrect. He was safe and had he been called safe it might have won the game for the home club. Your umpiring seems to have been good outside of that, but I believe that decision was wrong."

"Well, Mr. Sherman, possibly I did make a mistake, but even an umpire makes mistakes occasionally," retorted Owens with a smile. "I do not suppose there are any errors even in judgment made in Washington, but here we are liable to make all kinds of errors. You know baseball is a different vocation from making the laws of the land."

The game ended 3 to 2, in favor of the visiting club.

Before help could reach him he sank. His body has not been recovered.

AMERICAN GIRL WHO ELOPED KILLS SELF IN LONDON

Mrs. Jane Perin, Sister of Emma Eames' Rival, Uses Pistol to Die.

KNOWN IN SOCIETY

She Was the Daughter of Gen. V. A. Satori—Husband Was in Asylum.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—Mrs. Jane Perin, a young American, committed suicide this morning at Harrow-on-the-Hill. She shot herself with a revolver.

Mrs. Perin, who was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Ackroyd, the former the music master of the Harrow-on-the-Hill School, was found dead in the conservatory with her revolver by her side.

No one heard the shot that killed the young American woman. The servant, going into the conservatory, found her lying on the floor, with her own revolver alongside her. She was already dead.

Mrs. Perin was Mr. Ackroyd's sister-in-law. No reason for the tragedy yet has been divulged, and it is said that Mrs. Perin left no letters to explain her act.

Mrs. Perin's husband is due to reach New York in a few days.

Came of Old American Stock.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 11.—Mrs. Jane Perin, who committed suicide today at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ackroyd, at Harrow-on-the-Hill, England, was the daughter of Gen. Victor A. Sartori and prominent in Philadelphia society, where she was one of the most conspicuous of the younger beauties in society. She was about 27 years old and was the wife of one of the most eccentric young men in Baltimore.

Mrs. Perin came of an old American stock, and for many years her father was a consul in Belgium. Three daughters were born to the Sartoris. They had little money, and their first appearance in Philadelphia was with a family of the name of Wilson. Their attempt to climb the social ladder in Philadelphia had little success until the eldest girl, Elaine, married D. Murray Bohlen. She brought her sisters, who afterward became Mrs. Ackroyd and Mrs. Perin, to Philadelphia. Both were beautiful girls and many eligible men paid them homage.

Eldest Sister Divorced.

Mrs. Murray Bohlen was divorced from her husband about a year ago and has since become the wife of Julian Story, the artist, whose first wife was Mme. Emma Eames, the singer.

With her husband, Lawrence Perin, Mrs. Perin sailed for Europe on the Adriatic on April 28, expecting to spend the summer in England. Her visit to England was timed so that she might attend the wedding of her sister to Julian Story.

The circumstances attending the wedding of Miss Jane Gordon Sartori to Lawrence Perin of Baltimore attracted wide attention. They became engaged at Narragansett Pier four years ago. Mrs. Sartori, mother of the girl, wired from Europe forbidding the marriage, but on the following day with three friends of Perin, one of whom was Will Lehr, Harry Lehr's brother, they motored to New York, where the ceremony was performed by the Rev. Homer S. Taylor, assistant rector of the Church of the Holy Communion. Mr. and Mrs. Perin went abroad at once, and since that time spent their honeymoon in England and on the Continent.

Perin, who was eight years older than his wife, had been a frequent visitor in New York. He usually came alone.

Perin sprang into notoriety about six years ago by visiting the White House and declaring that he wanted to learn politics from President Roosevelt. He was removed from the grounds. Later young Perin, who said he wanted an office on the Republican ticket, gave a political dinner at Baltimore, at which all the guests were Democrats.

Perin Attacked Hearst.

After this escapade young Perin wrote a letter to William R. Hearst in which he attacked him severely for a publication about a peculiar style of overcoat he was seen wearing in Broadway and while in a high state of excitement visited Baltimore newspaper offices and offered to pay to have the letter published as an advertisement.

Perin was committed on May 16, 1903, to Butler's insane asylum, Providence, R. I., by Judge Ruckert. Drs. George L. Shattuck and Charles W. Higgins, who were secured by Nelson Perin, the father, testified at the hearing that in their opinion his case was incurable. He had previously, in January, 1903, been at the McLane asylum in Boston, and escaped from there. The elder Perin stated on the witness stand that he had given his son $100,000 which he squandered.

After the death of the elder Perin, who left a vast fortune, Lawrence Perin managed to get out of the Providence institution and from that time until his marriage he divided his time between Baltimore and New York.

Since their marriage the Perins have made their home in Maryland City, but have paid frequent visits to Philadelphia. It was understood by their friends that the married life was unusually happy. They had no children.

CHILL AT HOME OF WIDOW SHOOK HIM OUT OF JOB

"Sister" Phones Patrolman's Illness to Chief, but Doesn't Know Given Name.

HIS WIFE TESTIFIES

Policeman Who Passed Night in Woman's Home Charges Desertion.

When Patrolman Emmett J. Rainey had a chill at the home of Mrs. Dollie Jagels, a young widow, living at 4312 Cook avenue, he had no idea he was shaking himself out of a job.

The morning following the chill, a woman telephoned to Police Headquarters that Patrolman Rainey was too ill to report for duty.

"I am his sister," said the woman who telephoned.

"What is your brother's first name?" asked Chief Gillaspy

"Wait a minute, and I will find out," was the reply.

That remark made the Chief suspicious.

An investigation followed, and it was revealed that Patrolman Rainey had spent the night at the home of Mrs. Jagels.

At his trial before the Board of Police Comissioners Friday, Rainey's wife, from whom he is separated, testified that he had contributed nothing toward her support during the past two months. She lives at 115 South Ewing avenue.

"My wife left me of her own accord six months ago and I intend suing her for divorce on the grounds of desertion," said Rainey.

"You will have to wait six months longer before you can sue on those grounds," said Commissioner Bland, who is an attorney.

The chirography of Patrolman Herman Winkler of the Wyoming Street District caused his dismissal on a charge of intoxication.

A dozen sheets of paper on which Winkler had attempted to write a report were submitted to the board as evidence.

Patrolman James L. Pohlman of the Magnolia Avenue District was dismissed for intoxication after Sergt. Andrew J. Smith testified that he used language unfit for a sergeant of police to repeat.

"Was he unfit to perform police duty?" asked Col. Laird.

"He certainly was," replied Smith. "He was something awful."

SHE REGRETS MISSING CHANCE TO SHOOT BURGLAR IN KIMONA

MRS. MARY MEINHARDT.

BURGLAR WEARING KIMONO INTERRUPTED BY A WOMAN

Mrs Mary Meinhardt Regrets That Revolvers Were Not Handy So She Could Practice Shooting at Night Intruder.

Mrs. Mary Meinhardt of 2134 Benton street expected to be robbed early Saturday morning, but she was not prepared for the burglar when he called. Her two big revolvers, purchased especially to shoot burglars with, were hidden in her brother's room where the burglar was operating when she found him, and he leaped through a window before she could get them.

"It would have given me $1000 worth of pleasure to have riddled that fellow with bullets," said Mrs. Meinhardt. "I have been robbed three times on Fridays.

"A fortune teller told me I was going to be robbed soon. I expected the robber Friday night. I had my husband close all the blinds and fasten down the screens. Then I went to bed and forgot to get my revolvers.

Burglar Wore a Kimono.

"Intuition, or something, told me to get up and go into the kitchen at 4 a. m. When I went into the hall I saw a light. My husband was sleeping in one room and my brother in another. As I stepped into the kitchen a great big, bareheaded, barefooted burglar in a black kimono walked out of my brother's room.

"He looked savagely at me. I screamed and he leaped out of a window and ran away. If I had only had those two revolvers I would have shot him full of holes. I always did want to shoot a burglar, and by my own carelessness I missed the best opportunity I ever had."

Mrs. Meinhardt moved into the Benton street house three weeks ago. While living on Lexington avenue, she says, she was robbed three times in three years, the burglar always coming on Friday. The other burglars were caught, she says, and sent to the penitentiary.

Took Trousers and Purse.

As the burglar went through the window he took with him Mr. Meinhardt's trousers, Mrs. Meinhardt's wedding ring and purse containing $13.50 and $4.73 belonging to her brother.

The burglar first sawed a slat out of the window blind, near where John Schell, the brother, was sleeping. Peeping into the window he saw Schell, and then went to the kitchen window, sawed a slat out of the blind, propped the window screen up with a pair of scissors and climbed in. He was a careful burglar, for he first fastened the kitchen door so it would stay open, and then laid a bundle of clothes in front of Schell's pillow, so the light from the lamp would not waken him.

Meinhardt's trousers were found in an ashpit in the rear of 2130 Benton street. The burglar took everything of value out of the pockets.

"BILL" DINNEEN IS APPOINTED LEAGUE UMPIRE

Former Browns' Pitcher Will Call Strikes on His Former Teammates.

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—The appointment of William Dinneen of the pitching staff of the St. Louis American League Club, as an umpire of that organization was officially announced here today.

Dinneen's appointment increased the league's force of arbiters to eight.

Dinneen received a telegram at 1 p. m. Saturday directing him to report in Chicago Sunday morning. He was at the American League park when the message was delivered and left at once for his home to prepare for the trip to Chicago.

"Silk" O'Loughlin said the message did not state the purpose for which Dinneen was wanted in Chicago, but that the presumption of Dinneen and himself was that he was to be assigned from there to duty as an umpire.

PASSENGER TRAIN IS DERAILED

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 11.—Missouri Pacific passenger train No. 3, which left here today for Little Rock, Ark., was derailed near Swope Park, ten miles south of Kansas City.

Several passengers were injured.

VALUABLE RING, COLLEGE WIDOW WORE, MISSING

Jewel Taken From Dead Girl's Finger to Prevent Identification.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 11.—When today's investigations into the Ecorse Creek tragedy, in which Maybelle Millman of Ann Arbor was the victim, began, Dr. George A. Fritch was still under arrest at Police Headquarters. Miss Martha Henning and Mrs. Alice Renaud were understood to have remained at Police Headquarters over night as witnesses in the case, although Chief of Detectives McDonnell said last night that the two women were not being "detained."

The authorities are understood to have sought a statement from a University of Michigan student who has been prominent in athletics. The student is said to be playing with a minor baseball club in the West.

An opal ring which Miss Millman wore on the third finger of her left hand when she left the Cass avenue rooming house Aug. 27 is missing. Her friends say that the jewel was a valuable one. The sack in which the girl's hands was found was too securely tied to permit the explanation that the ring might have been washed away by the water. Apparently the ring was taken from the girl's finger with the purpose of removing every possible mark of identification.

BODY FOUND IN HOTEL BESIDE POISON BOTTLE

Note in Pocket Indicates That George Smith Is Name of the Suicide.

A man believed to be George Smith was found dead on the bed in Room 28 at the Grace Hotel, 414 Market street, at 11:30 a. m. Saturday. There was a bottle of hydrocyanic acid in the room and a small glass lay beside the body on the bed. The police think it was a case of suicide. The body was taken to the Morgue.

In a coat pocket a piece of paper was found on which had been written with a pencil: "George Smith, in case of accident, notify Mrs. G. A. Beck, 2211 Benton street, St. Louis, Mo."

The man registered at the Grace Hotel at 6:20 p. m. Friday. His door was not locked and the body was discovered by J. G. Lowenstein, a porter, who called F. M. Taylor, the proprietor. Taylor notified the police.

Mrs. G. A. Beck, 2211 Benton street, is a sister of Smith. When informed of her brother's death she said she thought his act was due to an ear trouble, from which he had been a sufferer, as he was earning good wages as a shoe cutter and had no troubles of any kind. He has been living with an unmarried sister and a brother at 4023 Lincoln street. He was 34 years old.

PEARY'S SENSATION ON REACHING POLE WAS COMMONPLACE

Entry Made in Journal After Reaching Top of the World Was: "Same as Other Days."

NEGRO ACCOMPANIED HIM ON LAST DAYS' TRAVELS

Second Installment of Explorer's Story Lacking in Detail, but Tends to Substantiate Experiences Narrated by Dr. Cook.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—The second installment of Lieutenant-Commander Peary's account of his dash to the North Pole, as published in the London Times today, and cabled back to the United States, was less productive of controversial comment than the first installment. Nevertheless, it was hailed by the adherents of Cook as further proving that in the light of Peary's achievement the claim of Cook that he accomplished the same feat under practically the same conditions is greatly strengthened.

It also indicates that Mathew Hansen, a negro, will share with Peary the distinction of reaching the pole.

The sharpest criticism of Peary's account, which is now complete, was that he gives fewer and fewer details as his story carries him nearer to the goal of centuries. This is most strikingly shown at that point in the narrative where the reader is led over fields of snow and ice to the very threshold of the unknown and encounters what Peary himself would call a "lead," a great open space.

Here is the passage in which the explorer sidesteps his expected detailed account of what he found at the top of the world:

"Before I turned in I took an observation, which indicated our position as 89:25. A dense, lifeless pall hung overhead. The horizon was black and the ice beneath was a ghastly, chalky white, with no relief—a striking contrast to the glimmering, sunlit fields of it over which we had been traveling for the previous four days.

"The going was even better and there was scarcely any snow on the hard, granular, last summer's surface of the old floes, dotted with the sapphire ice of the previous summer's lakes.

"A rise in temperature to 15 below reduced the friction of the sledges and gave the dogs the appearance of having caught the spirits of the party. The more sprightly ones, as they went along with tightly curled tails, frequently tossed their heads, with short, sharp barks and yelps.

"In 12 hours we made 40 miles. There was no sign of a lead in the march.

"I had now made my five marches, and was in time for a hasty noon observation through a temporary break in the clouds, which indicated our position as 89.5°. I quote an entry from my journal some hours later:

"'The pole at last. The prize of three centuries; my dream and goal for 20 years; mine at last. I cannot bring myself to realize it.

When Pole Was Reached It Seemed a Simple and Commonplace Matter

"'It all seems so simple and commonplace. As Bartlett said when turning back, when speaking of his being in these exclusive regions, which no mortal has ever penetrated before:

"'"It is just like every day."'

"'Of course, I had my sensations that made sleep impossible for hours, despite my utter fatigue—the sensations of a lifetime; but I have no room for them here.

"'The first 30 hours at the pole were spent in taking observations; in going some 10 miles beyond our camp and some eight miles to the right of it; in taking photographs, planting my flags, depositing my records, studying the horizon with my telescope for possible land, and searching for a practicable place to make a sounding.

"'Ten hours after our arrival the clouds cleared before a light breeze from our left, and from that time until our departure in the afternoon of April 7 the weather was cloudless and flawless. The minimum temperature during the 30 hours was 23 below, the maximum 12.

"'We had reached the goal, but the return was still before us. It was essential that we reach the land before the next spring tide, and we must strain every nerve to do this.'

In this, it is pointed, there is less detail than was contained in Dr. Cook's narrative, so far as the actual arrival at the pole and the observations made there are concerned. Peary nowhere says that he made a reckoning which showed he had reached the ninetieth parallel. The last reading he mentions is 89.57.

His statement that he reached the pole is not questioned even by the followers of Cook, but the point they make is that between two men who claim to have reached the pole there should be no criticism of one because his details were meager when the other's are equally lacking in the same essentials. The only explanation advanced here for the paucity of detail as to the pole itself is that Peary, like Cook, is reserving a more extended account for the book which he will publish.

No Doubt That Hansen, the Negro, Reached the Pole With Explorer

There is believed to be no doubt that Hansen, the negro body-servant, who reached the farthest north with Peary in 1901, was also with him when he reached the pole. While Peary reserved for Capt. Bartlett, an Englishman, the distinction of being the only white man with the exception of an American to reach the eighty-eighth parallel, he took this faithful negro much further north and presumably to the pole, as his account nowhere mentions that Hansen was sent back or left behind.

Final Dash to the Pole.

Of his start on the final dash, Peary, as quoted by the London Times, says:

"For success now, in spite of my years, I felt in trim—fit for the demands of the coming days and eager to be on the trail. As for my party, my equipment and my supplies, I was in shape beyond my most sanguine dreams of earliest years. My party might be regarded as an ideal which had now come to realization—as loyal and responsible to my will as the fingers of my right hand.

"Four of them carried the technique of dogs, sledges, ice and cold as their heritage. Two of them, Hansen and Ootah, were my companions to the farthest point three years before. Two others, Egingwah and Bigloo, were in Clark's division, which had such a narrow escape at that time, and now were willing to go anywhere, with my immediate party and willing to risk themselves again in any supporting party.

Young Man Struggled for Glad.

"The fifth was a young man, who had never served before in any expedition, but who was, if possible, even more willing and eager than the others for the princely gifts—a boat, a rifle, a shotgun, ammunition, knives, etc.—which I had promised to each of those who reached the pole with me; for he knew that these riches would enable him to wrest from a stubborn father the girl whose image filled his hot young heart.

"All had blind confidence so long as I was with them, and gave no thought for the morrow, sure that whatever happened I should somehow get them back to land. But I dealt with the party equally. I recognized that all its in-

MRS. PEARY, AT SIDNEY, DENIES CENSURING COOK

Lands at Nova Scotia City to Await Ship Bearing Her Husband.

3 CHILDREN WITH HER

Wife of Explorer Says He Promised Her Not to Try for South Pole.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SYDNEY, N. S., Sept. 11.—Mrs. Robert E. Peary, her 15-year-old, dark-eyed little girl, Marie Ahnighito Peary, who was born in the Arctic regions, and the sturdy little Robert E. Peary Jr., arrived here last evening from Eagle Island, Maine, to await the arrival of Commander Peary from his conquest of the frozen apogee of this universe. All were bubbling over with enthusiasm as they disembarked from the train and were met by the American Consul, John Kehl and Mrs. Kehl.

There were no crowds or demonstration at the station platform. Herbert L. Bridgeman, secretary of the Peary Arctic Club, and Editor Grosvenor of the Geographic Magazine joined Consul Kehl at the station and took charge of Mrs. Peary and her party in their drive to the Sydney Hotel.

Robert E. Peary Jr., aged 6, was shrill with delight as he got down to the station platform and saluted the American Consul with the Stars and Stripes nailed to a rough hickory staff. Jumping up and down, the little chap cried: "They wanted me to carry this flag in my pocket, but I had it nailed to the stick because my papa nailed the Stars and Stripes to the North Pole."

Other members of Mrs. Peary's party who accompanied her to Sydney were Mrs. Elsa F. Barker and Mrs. Henry E. Rand.

Denies Criticising Cook.

Shortly after her arrival at the hotel, Mrs. Peary granted an interview, in which she expressed delight at her husband's achievement, and incidentally denied that she had ever hinted at any criticism of Dr. Cook's claim that he had beaten her husband to the pole.

Deeply tanned and smiling with eyes and mouth, Mrs Peary exclaimed at the first question put by her interviewers: "Grand; what else can I say? It was glorious." Then she squared her shoulders and, smiling, confronted her questioners.

"Now that Mr. Peary has discovered the North Pole, do you think he will make a conquest for the South Pole?"

"No," responded Mrs. Peary, "I do not believe that Mr. Peary will ever personally undertake an Antarctic expedition. Of course, he would be glad to render all the aid he could to anyone else undertaking such an expedition, but he has assured me that he will not take up any such enterprise himself."

Undiscovered Land Challenged.

Mrs. Peary recalled then that two years ago Commander Peary had spoken of an Antarctic expedition when the International Polar Commission met in Brussels and had then offered to aid in the expedition that was projected.

"Did your husband consider that any great scientific value would attach to his discovery of the North Pole?" Mrs. Peary was asked.

"My husband always said," laughed Mrs. Peary, "that so long as an inch on the footstool remained undiscovered, that undiscovered inch offered a challenge to civilization."

"You know that in the last seven years Mr. Peary has been home only once. We married 20 years ago, and in all that time my husband has been home with me only three years."

The wife of the explorer then said that she had no "truly home" to welcome Mr. Peary to.

"You know," she ran on, "that we have an apartment in Washington and a place at Eagle Island. After Mr. Peary gets here I will take the children back to Eagle Island. He will probably go on to Washington, as he is really on duty for the Department of Geodetic Survey. He must make his report to the Department on the result of his exploration, furnish maps and all that, you know."

The topic of Dr. Cook's discovery of the pole last year was then broached, and Mrs. Peary said that she wished to deny that she had ever made any statement in criticism of Dr. Cook.

"Of course," she said, "I was disappointed to hear about Dr. Cook after Mr. Peary had been working toward the same end for so many years. Yet, I say when I heard about Dr. Cook, that I desired to congratulate him if he had found the pole. After all my husband's labor, I felt that he should have gotten there first, but I could not decline to congratulate Dr. Cook. As for any controversy there may be over that matters, it is not becoming for me to discuss it."

The latest reports received here were that Peary is still at Battle Harbor, and may continue there for several days.

PEARY REPORTS OFFICIALLY HE CLAIMED POLE

Explorer Tells President and Department of State of Hoisting Flag.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—To the President of the United States and to the Secretary of State, before whose department will come any questions that may arise regarding the right of possession of the region of the North Pole and the Arctic region traversed by Peary, and to the Navy Department, of which he is an officer, Commander Robert E. Peary has communicated the results of his expedition, and the fact that he reached the North Pole and hoisted the Stars and Stripes on April 6 last.

As soon as he came within telegraph communication Mr. Peary notified the President of what he had accomplished, and followed this up with dispatches from Battle Harbor, where his vessel is now coaling and undergoing repairs, to the Secretary of State and to the Secretary of the Navy.

In reporting to the State Department, Commander Peary, after stating that he hoisted the Stars and Stripes at the North Pole April 6, adds that he formally took possession of "that entire region and adjacent land for and in the name of the President, United States America." He adds that a record and the United States flag were left in possession.

Report Is Official.

The Commander's dispatch to the United States was typical of that of an officer returning from a mission announcing to his superior officer that fact, and adding that he had hoisted the navy ensign on the North Pole on April 6.

Mr. Adee is Acting Secretary of State in the absence of Secretary Knox, who is at his Valley Forge home. A copy of Peary's dispatch will be sent to Mr. Knox. Mr. Adee declines to make any comment whatever on the dispatch from Commander Peary on the ground that there was no question now before the department.

Navy Department Pleased.

Mr. Winthrop promptly sent Commander Peary a dispatch on behalf of the Navy Department, extending his hearty congratulations on Peary's successful attempt to reach the North Pole."

Mr. Winthrop voiced the sentiments of the naval officials when he said that the Navy Department naturally was very much gratified that Civil Engineer Peary, who is an officer in the civil engineer corps of the naval establishment, had succeeded, after many attempts, in reaching the pole. Commander Peary is now on leave of absence from the navy, but is detailed to duty with the Coast and Geodetic Survey, making "tidal observations on the coast of Grantland and Greenland Greenland."

Peary's Story Helps to Support Cook's Claims

petus centered in me, and that whatever pace I set it would make good. If anyone was played out I would stop for a short time.

Dogs in Good Condition.

"I had no fault to find with the conditions. My dogs were the very best, the pick of 122 with which we left Columbia. Almost all were powerful males, hard as nails, in good flesh, but without a superfluous ounce, without a suspicion of fat anywhere; and, what was better yet, they were all in good spirits.

"My sledges, now that the repairs were completed, were in good condition. My supplies were ample for 40 days, and, with the reserve represented by the dogs themselves, could be made to last 50."

There is no detailed explanation in Peary's story of his hitherto unheard-of accomplishment in making nearly 35 miles a day over the fields of snow and ice in the last four days of his journey. He merely says that at this stage of his dash he made forced marches. The greatest speed which he specifically mentions was near the eighty-eighth parallel, when they covered 20 miles in 10 hours.

Of this portion of his journey, he says:

Ice Was Grinding Audibly.

"The ice was grinding audibly in every direction, but no motion was visible. Evidently it was settling back into equilibrium, and probably sagging due northward with its release from the wind pressure.

"Again there was a few hours' sleep and we hit the trail before midnight. The weather and going were even better. The surface, except as interrupted by infrequent ridges, was as level as the glacial fringe from Hecla to Columbus, and harder.

"We marched something over ten hours, the dogs being often on the trot, and made 20 miles. Near the end of the march we rushed across a lead 100 yards wide, which buckled under our sledges and finally broke as the last sledge left it.

"We stopped in sight of the eighty-ninth parallel, in a temperature of 40 degrees below. Again a scant sleep, and we were on our way once more and across the eighty-ninth parallel.

"This march duplicated the previous one as to weather and going. The last few hours it was on young ice, and occasionally the dogs were galloping.

Wind Cracked the Face.

"We made 35 miles or more, the air, the sky and the bitter wind burning the face till it crackled. It was like the great interior ice cap of Greenland. Even the natives complained of the bitter air. It was as keen as frozen steel.

"A little longer sleep than the previous ones had to be taken here, as we were all in need of it. Then on again."

PEARY PROMISES PROOF COOK NEVER SAW POLE

A DISPATCH from Commander Robert E. Peary, dated at Battle Harbor, Labrador, yesterday, has just been received in this city, and reads as follows:

"The Roosevelt will remain here three or four days, coaling and overhauling the ship. I expect to arrive at Sydney about Sept. 15. Do not trouble about Cook's story or attempt to explain any discrepancies in his statements. The affair will settle itself. He has not been at the pole on April 21, 1908, or at any other time. He has simply handed the public a gold brick.

"These statements are made advisedly and I have proof of them. When he makes a full statement of his journey, over his signature to some geographical society or other reputable body, if that statement contains the claim that he reached the pole, I shall be in a position to furnish material that may prove distinctively interesting reading for the public.

"ROBERT E. PEARY."

In his account Peary says that he himself was surprised by the ease with which they made the return dash from the pole to Cape Columbia in 16 days. The ice was level and unbroken, he says, but he goes no further into an explanation of their unusual feat in maintaining an average of nearly 30 miles a day.

When at last they had reached the base of supplies at the Cape, one of his Eskimos sat down on his sledge and exclaimed:

"The devil must be asleep or having trouble with his wife, or we never could have come back so easily."

Compliments for Assistants.

In closing his account Peary compliments all of the members of his immediate party and the crew of the Roosevelt, naming each man.

In conclusion he says:

"But all of this is the dearly bought years of experience. The magnificent strength of the Roosevelt, the splendid energy and enthusiasm of my party, the loyal faithfulness of my Eskimos—could have gone for naught but for the faithful necessaries of war furnished so loyally by the members and friends of the Peary Arctic Club. And it is no detraction from the living to say that to no single individual has the fine result been more signally due than to my friend, the late Morris K. Jessup, the first president of the club.

"Their assistance has enabled me to tell the last of the great earth stories, the story the world has been waiting to hear for 300 years—the story of the discovery of the North Pole."

STEAMER ROOSEVELT TO HAVE PLACE IN BIG RIVER PARADE

Bridgman Declares, However, Craft Will Not Associate With Rival's Ship.

SYDNEY, Nova Scotia, Sept. 11.—Herbert L. Bridgman, in reply to his application for a position for the Roosevelt in the Hudson-Fulton naval parade, has received the following telegram from New York:

"Hudson-Fulton celebration commission proud to have Peary Arctic Club's steamer with North Pole in naval parade. Hearty congratulations.

"E. H. HALL, Assistant Secretary."

The probability is, Mr. Bridgman says, that the Roosevelt easily will reach New York in time to participate in the festivities.

Questioned concerning the report that the yacht John R. Bradley, which conveyed Dr. Cook to Greenland, would be in the parade, Mr. Bridgman said it had been sold, but, of course, it could be entered by its new owners. He declared, however, that if the Cook yacht was given a place in the parade, the Roosevelt certainly would not participate.

PEARY IS BRINGING WALRUS SKINS TO DECORATE CLUB

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—The following cable was received today at the Peary Arctic Club in Brooklyn:

"Battle Harbor (via Cape Ray, Sept. 9). H. L. Bridgman, Brooklyn, N. Y.: Roosevelt will remain here three or four days, coaling. Expect to reach Sydney about the 15th. Have 100 walrus skins on board for the club. Your letters per whaler and the Jeanie received. You are the logical candidate for the Polar Commission. PEARY."

Mr. Bridgman is now at Sydney with Mrs. Peary waiting to meet Commander Peary. The significance of the last sentence is not known at the Peary Arctic Club.

PEARY TELLS GOVERNMENT IT HAS NEW POSSESSIONS IN NORTH

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—The following message has been received at the State Department from Commander Peary:

C.—Respectfully report hoisted stars and stripes on North Pole, April 6, and formally took possession that entire region and adjacent for and in name of President of the United States America. Record and United States flag left in possession. PEARY."

Acting Secretary Adee of the State Department, in answer to inquiries, said that the State Department had no comment whatever to make, as there was no question before him.

HADLEY SILENT; POLICE CHANGE RUMORS RIFE

McDonnell, Inspector, Is New Favorite for Chief Creecy's Office.

McMULLEN IS SWITCHED

Sent Back to Beat From Head of the Detective Gambling Squad.

Reports of changes in the heads of the Police Department are current among Republican politicians in St. Louis after numerous conferences political leaders had with Gov. Hadley during his strenuous Friday in St. Louis. There is a strong suggestion that Inspector Richard McDonnell will succeed Chief of Police Creecy.

In police circles for weeks it has been generally believed that Chief Creecy and Chief of Detectives Smith will soon be asked to resign. Capt. Schoppe of the Carr Street District has been considered a likely successor for Creecy, and while it is known that McDonnell's name is being considered, Schoppe is said to have at least an equal chance with McDonnell.

John McMullen, who aspires to succeed James H. Smith as Chief of Detectives, has been transferred from the detective gambling squad to a Sergeant's beat. The order was issued by the Police Board at an executive meeting Friday night.

Sergt. McMullen is a regularly appointed Sergeant, but has been doing plain clothes duty for nearly a year. Recently he was sent to Paris for M. Dwight Fortner, the young real estate operator charged with forgery.

Detective Peter Wells will head the gambling squad. Col. Laird, president of the Police Board, said that the department was short of active sergeants, and as McMullen was perfectly willing to take a beat, he was transferred.

The Board ordered the policemen who have been assigned to duty at the plants of Evens & Howard, 5200 Manchester avenue; the Hydraulic Pressed Brick Co., Manchester avenue and King's highway, and the Scullin & Gallagher Steel Co., 6700 Manchester avenue, on pay days, to walk beats. Col. Laird says there is a shortage of police and that the department cannot afford to furnish policemen to private plants. Patrolman John McCartha, who has been assigned to the Boiler Inspector's office to watch unlicensed engineers, has completed his work, and will be transferred to a beat.

Young Clerk's Rapid Rise.

About police headquarters it is being whispered that politics is responsible for the rapid rise of James J. Barrett of the Soulard Street District, who was promoted Friday from second-class clerk at $75 a month to first-class clerk at $90 a month. Barrett, who is said to be a Republican, was appointed a few weeks ago. He is a capable young man. There were nine Democrats in line for the promotion.

Edward Campbell and W. H. Bowman were appointed third-class clerks and Benjamin Matthews was appointed to the position of janitor. None of them has seen service in the Police Department. Heretofore it has been a custom to elevate telephone boys to these positions.

Gov. Hadley Not Talking.

Gov. Hadley made no announcement of any plans for changes in the Police Department, but he had several conferences with President Laird of the Police Board, and with Police Commissioner Teichmann.

The Governor had a record day for activity Friday. He was besieged every minute by politicians. The Governor had said on arrival that he did not expect to see many persons as he had made practically all the appointments at his disposal.

Among his visitors were State Chairman Walter S. Dickey, Cyrus P. Walbridge, the Rev. Jacob F. Meeker, John B. Owen, State Senator Krone, City Collector Edmond Koeln, Representative Fred Busche, Postmaster Thomas J. Akins, United States Marshal William L. Morsey, Excise Commissioner Caulfield, Jeptha D. Howe and Martin J. Collins.

Promises Suppression of Lid Clubs.

A delegation from the Retail Liquor Dealers' Association spent considerable time with the Governor, making a protest against the "lid clubs." The Governor promised that he would do all in his power to suppress these clubs, agreeing with the saloon men that the clubs which paid no license and which kept open on Sunday interfered with the legitimate business, and should not be permitted to exist.

The Governor also saw representatives of the Wholesale Liquor Dealers' Association, who planned to contest the new law taxing wholesale dealers. The Governor told them he would insist upon the tax being paid.

Excise Commissioner Caulfield announced after the Governor had departed that he thought the liquor men thoroughly understood that it was to their interest to pay the tax, and that he expected them to pay it within a few days.

Jeptha D. Howe took the Governor to the ball game in the afternoon in the automobile the members of the City Committee gave Howe immediately after the election. They were accompanied by Circuit Attorney Jones, Henry W. Kiel, chairman of the Republican City Committee, and Excise Commissioner Caulfield. They had planned after the game to visit the Missouri School for the Blind, but the machine broke down at Grand and St. Louis avenues, and by the time Howe had fixed it it was too late to go to the school.

The Governor returned to the Southern Hotel for dinner and left for Jefferson City at 8:10 p. m.

DR. COOK SAILS FOR NEW YORK; DUE SEPT. 21

Unusual Honors Accorded to Explorer by King of Norway on Departure.

By Associated Press.

CHRISTIANSAND, Norway, Sept. 11.—The steamer Oscar II, with Dr. Frederick A. Cook, the American arctic explorer, on board, left here at noon today for New York.

She is due to arrive Sept. 21.

Dr. Cook arrived here from Copenhagen on board the steamer Melchior. The municipal authorities boarded the vessel in the harbor and the Burgomaster of Christiansand delivered a speech of welcome in which he congratulated the explorer on his achievement.

Dr. Cook, in his reply, eulogized the explorers of Norway. In the course of his remarks he said:

"After reading Sverdrup's book, I discerned a new route to the North Pole, but I mentioned it to nobody. I felt impelled to try this route. Commander Peary seems angry because I did not ask his leave."

The greeting accorded Dr. Frederick A. Cook upon his arrival this morning at Christiansand savored strongly of the triumphal return to his own country of a victorious warrior. Every vessel in the harbor was gaily decorated with flags and all the available small craft had been chartered to bring out sightseers from the shore.

A salute of seven guns was fired from the deck of the Melchior and answered by seven guns from the Christiansand fort. This especial honor was accorded Dr. Cook, a civilian, on a special order issued by King Haakon.

St. Joseph Chief Resigns.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Sept. 11.—Chief of Police J. J. McNamara, who has been on the police force 16 years, has resigned. Chief McNamara, a Democrat, was appointed only a few months ago by the present Republican Police Board.

It is stated that the resignation of other Democrats will be forthcoming within the next few days. Charles H. Haskell of the United States Marshal's office here is slated to succeed McNamara.

SURGEON'S KNIFE TO RELIEVE HIS DESIRE TO STEAL

Operation Is Planned to Cure Cyrus Eaton of Thieving.

For the purpose of curing Cyrus Eaton's periodical ungovernable impulse to steal, surgeons at the City Hospital are planning to perform a delicate operation, known as craniotomy, in which several pieces of the skull will be cut away, relieving a pressure against the brain.

Eaton formerly was highly respected and his integrity was not questioned, but several years ago, while driving near the Union Station, his horse became frightened and ran away. In order to avoid injuring persons in the animal's path, Eaton turned the horse into a post. He was thrown out and struck on his head.

After his wound healed he began to drink and several times was caught stealing. For these offenses he was sent to the Workhouse. His wife has remained devoted to him, believing his offenses were not the result of moral faults, but of his injury in the runaway.

A missionary in the Workhouse met Eaton and heard his story. At the missionary's suggestion, Eaton was sent to the City Hospital and arrangements were made for the operation. Eaton says he will be only too glad if the surgeons can rid him of his evil propensities, for which in normal periods he feels the keenest remorse.

OLD NAIL IN FOOT KILLS BOY, THIRD TETANUS DEATH IN WEEK

Still Another Case, That of a Man, at the City Hospital.

The death of Tobert Queenan, 12 years old, Saturday morning is the third death from tetanus this week at the City Hospital. The boy lived at 2828 Oregon avenue. He ran a rusty nail in his right foot 11 days ago, and tetanus developed. He was taken to the hospital Wednesday.

The other deaths from that malady during the week were George Fisher, 9 years old, of 1437 Kentucky avenue, and Joseph Fuetlein, 17, of 321 Spruce street. One other case of tetanus remains in the institution, that of John Koenig, 38 years old, of 2538 De Kalb street.

WILL DIVIDES $18 AMONG SIX

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—While the general public was wondering today how the will of E. H. Harriman would dispose of something like $100,000,000, the other side of life was thrown upon the canvas when the last will and testament of Mrs. Sarah Flynn was admitted to probate.

She bequeaths to six members of her family a total of $18 and to a favored daughter her household property and a lawsuit.

FAMILY FRIEND STOLE JEWELRY FROM KIES HOME

Samuel Reinhardt Offers Explanation That He "Needed the Money."

Mystery surrounding a burglary committed several months ago at the home of Henry W. Kies, 2259 South Compton avenue, was cleared Saturday when Detective John Schmidt returned from Independence, Mo., with Samuel Reinhardt, 19 years old, a friend of the Kies family.

When members of the Kies family awoke on the morning of May 7 they discovered the house had been ransacked and that jewels valued at $200 were missing. The house was searched from top to bottom for some clew as to how the burglar had gotten into the house, but none was found. Every door and window was securely fastened just as it had been left the night before.

The family concluded that a skeleton key must have admitted the burglars, but detectives insisted that some one familiar with the premises must have done the work and that his acquaintance with the family had made it possible for him to commit the burglary without the aid of keys.

The pawnshops were watched closely and a few days ago a watch, which was included in the plunder, was found in a Pine street loan office. It was learned that Herbert Treble, proprietor of two nickelodeons, had borrowed money on the watch, and an interview with Mr. Treble soon convinced the detectives that they were on the trail of Sam Reinhardt.

Reinhardt had worked for Treble and was a visitor at the Kies home. One day he showed several pawn tickets and said he had been forced to pawn some jewelry. He offered the tickets for sale at a bargain and Treble purchased them and redeemed a watch, diamond ring, diamond earrings and a stickpin. Later he pawned the watch.

"I was broke and needed the money," was all Reinhardt would say when arrested.

CHILD LURED TO WEEDS ESCAPES; CONVICT IS HELD

Eva Johnson, 10 Years Old, Identifies Paroled Felon as Assailant.

Eva Johnson, 10 years old, daughter of W. A. Johnston of 1134 Trendley avenue, East St. Louis, was enticed onto a vacant, weed-grown lot off an alley between Bond and Market avenues, and running from Tenth to Eleventh streets, East St. Louis, at 11:30 a. m. Saturday by a man from whom she escaped before beind harmed.

The child, with her brother, Fred, 7 years old, had been to a grocery at Tenth street and Bond avenue. On their way home they entered an alley. Half wa between Tenth and Eleventh streets, a man stpped out of the weeds and accosted them. He told the little girl to go with him and told her brother to go home.

The little girl accompanied the man into some high weeds and when he saized her she freed herself and ran. He did not pursue her, but endeavored to persuade her to return. He continued running, however, and told her mother when she reached home.

The child gave a description of her assailant and the police arrested Dave Patten, a paroled convict, at Eighth street and Piggott avenue an hour later. He was identified b the little girl and her brother.

Patten was serving a five-year sentence at Chester for a box-car robbery, when he was paroled five months ago. He is employed at the Illinois Central shops in East St. Louis. He said he had been at work all morning and denied the children's charge.

UNION ELECTRIC LOSES CONTRACTS TO NEW RIVAL

Violates Schedule, but Cannot Hold Buckingham Club and Annex.

LOW RATE TO BIXBY

Light and Development Co. Expects Big Business in Spite of Howe.

The Union Electric Light and Power Co. has lost the contract of the Buckingham Club and Buckingham Annex, one of the largest consumers of electricity in St. Louis. The Light and Development Co., which is seeking to enter the field as a rival of the Union, captured the contract.

In an effort to hold the business of the Buckingham, the Union violated every essential feature of its so-called November schedule. A year ago the Union company was offering a reward of $100 for any contract that failed to conform to the November schedule.

The Light and Development Co., which has acquired the Aloe franchise, similar to the Browning-King franchise, owned by the West End Light and Power Co., will install individual plants in the Buckingham buildings. The company's right to use its franchise has been attacked by the city, following the employment of Republican "Boss" Jeptha D. Howe by James Campbell, the financial head of the utilities trust.

"Boss" Howe Is Employed.

A quo warranto suit to deprive it of its charter was filed soon after Howe's employment and payment of a fee of $2500 in the West End case.

The Light and Development Co. has taken away from the Union company all of the business in the block between Broadway and Sixth street, Washington and Lucas avenues, in addition to the Buckingham contracts. The Light and Development Co. expects to have a well-established business in St. Louis by the time the courts pass upon the validity of its franchise.

To prevent the Buckingham from putting in a plant a year ago, Union Electric made it a combination rate for both buildings, a thing it has refused to do for consumers who were not in a position to install plants. Not only that, but it agreed to group all of the electricity consumed for both light and power under the power rates, which are lower than the rates for light.

Rates to Millionaires.

Under this arrangement the Buckingham got current for less than 2½ cents a kilowatt hour.

Another peculiar phase of the situation is that the large residence of W. K. Bixby at King's Highway and Lindell boulevard is supplied with electricity at Buckingham rates. All of the current for Mr. Bixby's residence first goes through the Buckingham meters, and then through a sub-meter to his house.

While the other West End millionaires, unless they have a secret agreement with the Union Co., are paying 12 cents a kilowatt hour for current, Mr. Bixby is getting his light at one-fifth that rate.

Small consumers throughout the city are required to pay, for residence lighting, 12 cents a kilowatt hour. The discrimination in favor of Mr. Bixby is 9½ cents a kilowatt hour.

An owner of two buildings in the business center of the city endeavored about the time the Buckingham contract was made to get a combination rate, but was refused. The highest power rate is 10 cents a kilowatt hour, and the highest contract light rate is 12 cents a kilowatt hour. The power rates are uniformly lower than the light rates, so it will be seen the Union Co. made the Buckingham the most advantageous rate possible in order to hold its business.

The Light and Development Co. will operate the plants for the Buckingham Club and annex. The company, besides its St. Louis business, is now operating the electric light and gas and water works of Cape Girardeau, and has recently acquired the electric light, gas and street railway plants of Paris, Tex.

Competition Responsible.

Many customers have been notified by Union Electric that they will not be forced to pay the minimum guarantee of 10 cents a lamp under the November schedule. A consumer who was formerly required to pay almost $40 a month for $10 worth of electricity, has been notified that his minimum will be $1 a month, at a straight 12 cents a kilowatt hour rate. He will not be required to sign the iron-clad contracts formerly forced upon consumers.

The possibility of competition in St. Louis is said to be responsible for the concessions in rates and conditions of contract.

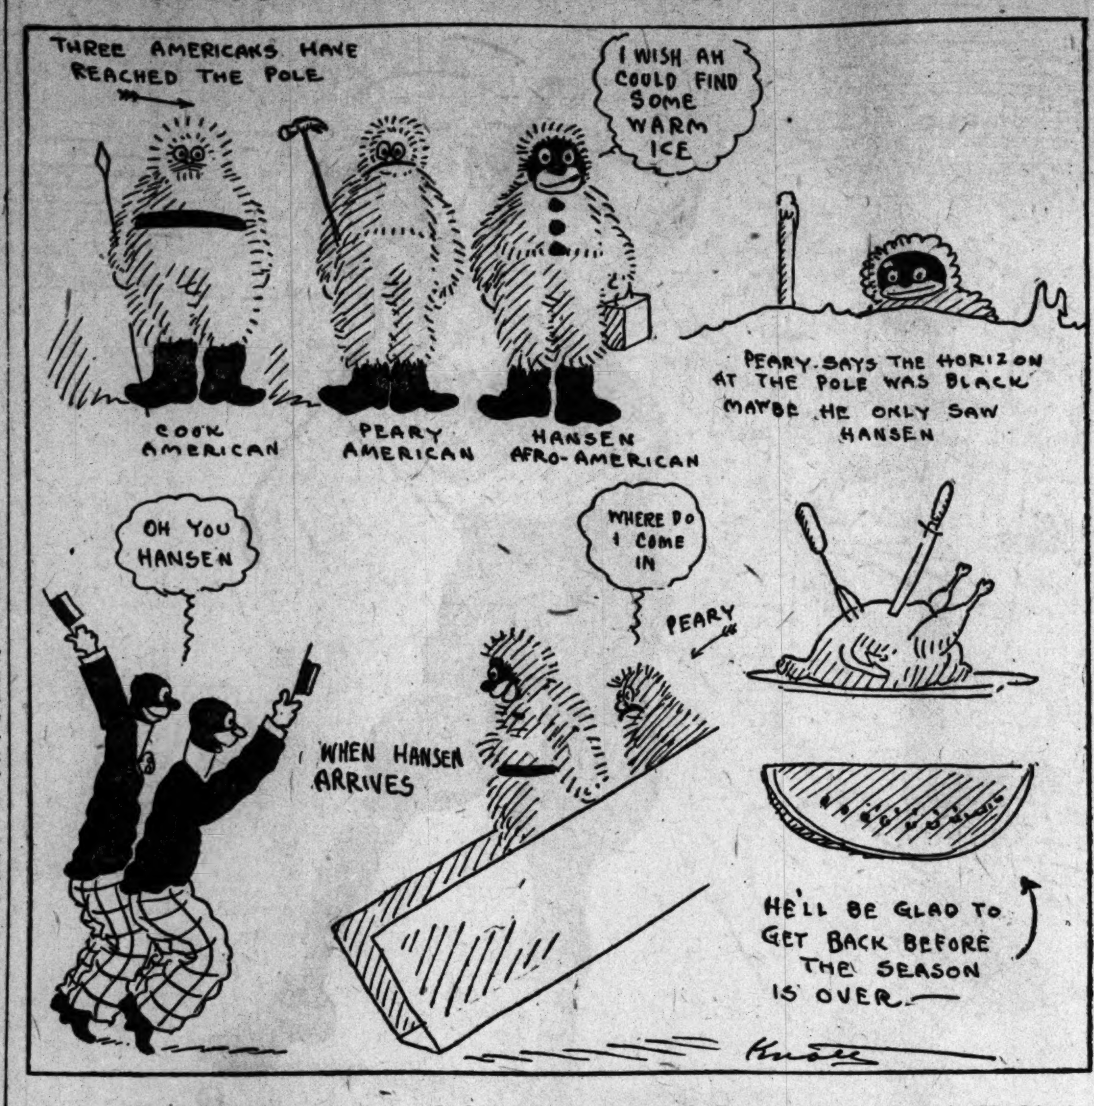

"By the time we get out of court we expect to have a good business established in St. Louis," said President Hugo Wurdack of the Light and Development Co. "We are here to stay, and would have been doing business long ago if we had not been tied up with litigation. Competition will be a good thing for consumers of St. Louis. We can build a modern plant and equip it and supply electricity to consumers at much more advantageous rates than the Union company, bonded and capitalized as it is, can make."

HARRIMAN SENT FOR MORGAN AS HE WAS DYING

Final Conference Held at Arden to Settle Big Railroad Problems.

STOCK CHANGES HANDS

Banking Firm Has Enough Union Pacific to Get Representation on Board.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—One of the last men to talk with Edward H. Harriman before the relapse of last Sunday that ended in his death was J. P. Morgan.

The financier went to Arden house Thursday of last week when the improvement in Mr. Harriman's condition was at its height, and in spite of his bodily weakness, the head of the Union Pacific system was as well fitted to discuss business as at any time in his life.

For nearly two hours the two leaders of American finance sat on the porch in the sun. It is believed that at this conference plans were laid to support the financial market in the event of Mr. Harriman's death or in case his health forced him to abandon all business activity. Mr. Morgan's estate on the west bank of the Hudson joins that of Mr. Harriman.

Harriman Knew He Was Dying.

When this conference occurred Mr. Harriman knew he was a dying man, although he kept this information from his family and steadily encouraged their belief that he would get well. No one saw more clearly than Mr. Harriman what would probably happen when he died. For the sake of thousands of railroad stockholders, as well as for his own interests, he knew that unless the strongest money power in the country "got under" the market the effect of death would be disastrous. This, without doubt, is why he called in Mr. Morgan.

All calculation as to the successor of Harriman in the domination of the 65,000 miles of railroads he controlled were upset when it was learned that J. P. Morgan & Co. have accumulated substantial holdings of Union Pacific stock, enough to warrant Mr. Morgan, if he insists upon it, in getting a place in the Union Pacific directorate.

The death of Mr. Harriman makes a vacancy in the board and men who are in a position to know predicted that J. Pierpont Morgan Jr., the son of America's foremost financier, has been selected by the elder Morgan to be his representative in the Union Pacific directorate. It was even further declared that young Mr. Morgan might be chosen chairman of the board, the position held by Mr. Harriman.

A special meeting of the directors of the Union Pacific will be held Monday next, and it promises to be the most momentous in the history of the company. Whether the elder Morgan will be willing to show his hand so soon after the death of Mr. Harriman and have his son elected Monday as a director of the company is a matter of guess work.

TWO GIRLS LEAVE HOME, LURED BY THE FOOTLIGHTS

Ruth Becker, 17, and Lydia Redke, 16, Missing Since Thursday.

"GETTING $18 A WEEK"

Brunette Writes to Mother, Saying She Is on Stage and "Don't Worry."

A note mailed by one of the girls and a mysterious telephone message received by her mother are the only clews to the possible whereabouts of Ruth Becker, 17 years old, and Lydia Redke, 16, who ran away together to follow the lure of the footlights.

The telephone message was received by Mrs. Becker and the person at the other end of the wire was a woman. She advised Mrs. Becker not to worry about the girls, as they were at the home of an aunt of one of them in North St. Louis. Mrs. Becker has been unable to verify this.

Ruth and Lydia were girl chums, and their favorite diversion was going to the theater together without escorts. Their acquaintance with a doorkeeper at the Gayety Theater made it possible for them to see performances there without paying for admission, according to a statement made to the police by Mrs. Albert Becker, Ruth's mother.

Lydia Redke's home is at 1306 Webster avenue and Ruth Becker's at 2641 Arsenal street. Neither of the girls has been seen by relatives since they left Ruth's home at 6 p. m. Thursday. Mrs. Becker Friday received this note from her daughter:

"Dear Mother—After planning to go on the stage, I have at last decided to go, but don't worry. I am getting $18 a week. Will write soon.

"P. S.—Don't worry. Lydia and I are going."

Girls Were Fascinated.

Mrs. Becker said Saturday that Ruth and Lydia seemed fascinated by the show which is playing at the Gayety Theater this week and that up to the time of their disappearance they had attended every performance of "The Golden Crook," advertised as "extravaganza and refined burlesque."

"Lydia came to our house early Thursday evening," said Mrs. Becker. "She removed her outer clothing and put on an outfit belonging to my daughter.

"They went away saying they were going to a show. I knew of their acquaintance with a doorkeeper at the Gayety and when my daughter did not return Friday I went down to the theater and saw this man. He said the girls had been there Thursday night, but that they didn't go in. After talking to the doorkeeper awhile, they told him they were going to the Imperial Theater, but I couldn't find any trace of them there.

"I had often heard them talk of wanting to go on the stage, but I didn't think they were earnest enough about it to run away from home."

WIDOWER FOUND SHOT AT GRAVE DIES AT HOSPITAL

William Henschen Leaves No Explanation of Act, Seemed to Be Over Grief.

An inquest was held Saturday over the body of William Henschen, a bookkeeper, of 4751 Hammett place, who died at the City Hospital four hours after being found lying unconscious on a grave in SS. Peter and Paul Cemetery. He had a bullet wound over his heart and a revolver, with one empty chamber, was lying beside him.

Henschen was found by Supt. Gaspar of the cemetery late Friday afternoon, and was immediately hurried to the hospital. He left no note explaining his act. Relatives said he had not seemed despondent recently. His wife died several years ago, and he was greatly affected at the time, though relatives though he had recovered from his grief.

WOMAN PASSES SISTER'S BODY IN DEPOT IN RACE WITH DEATH

Mrs. Anna Cunningham, Hurrying From Seattle to Alton Bedside, Is Too Late.

Mrs. Anna Cunningham, recalled from Seattle, Wash., to Alton by a telegram telling her that her sister, Mrs. S. H. Gregory, was seriously sick, passed within a few yards of the casket containing her sister's body, at the Relay Station, East St. Louis, without knowing that she was dead.

Mrs. Gregory died Wednesday noon at her home, Fourth and Alby streets. Mrs. Cunningham was expected to arrive Thursday evening, but she was delayed. As the body was to be taken to Louisville, Ky., for interment, it was decided not to await her return.

Mr. Gregory and his son, Winfrey, and his daughter, Louise, started Friday evening.

Mrs. Cunningham went to Alton, where she first learned of her sister's death from her father, Capt. G. W. Hill, and two other sisters, Mrs. Virginia McKinney of St. Louis and Mrs. F. P. Hearne of Alton.

MRS. BRANK, AS DIVORCEE, PLANS A STAGE CAREER

Choir Singer Told Brother-in-Law Such Was Her Intention.

Mrs. Florence Brank, a choir singer in St. Louis churches, will go on the stage and endeavor to earn her living with her voice after she obtains a divorce from Robert C. Brank, according to a statement by the Rev. Rockwell S. Brank, pastor of the Memorial Presbyterian Church, a brother to Robert C. Brank.

The Rev. Mr. Brank said that his brother's wife told him of her plans to take up stage life as a means of livelihood about two weeks ago, which, he says, is the last time he saw her. In the conversation he says Mrs. Brank did not say whether she expected to enter an opera company or a musical comedy.

Mrs. Allen Tanner of Mount Vernon, Ill., mother of Mrs. Brank, at whose home Mrs. Brank has been staying recently, refused to discuss the future plans of her daughter, and said she did not know the exact address of Mrs. Brank at present. She said over the long-distance telephone Friday that she could not answer for her daughter as to her plans concerning either the divorce suit or future means of earning her living.

The Branks were married at Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 4, 1905, but it did not become known to their friends until a week later. Upon their return to St. Louis they lived at 408 Euclid avenue.

At the time of their marriage Mrs. Brank was a choir singer. Brank is a traveling salesman and is a son of the late Rev. R. G. Brank, for many years pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church.

In his cross bill to his wife's divorce petition charges that his wife went automobile riding and to places of amusement with other men. He also alleges that on an unexpected return to his home he found her in company with another man in their home.

YOUNG MEN ENGAGE ROOMS, THEN ROB OTHER LODGERS

Valuables Worth Several Hundred Dollars Stole From Lodging House.

Two well-dressed young men engaged lodging at Henry Heet's rooming house, 1701 Market street, Friday afternoon and half an hour later departed, saying they were going to the Union Station to look after some baggage.

Later Joseph Haus, William Dayton and Joseph Meyer, roomers in the house, reported that their trunks and wardrobes had been ransacked. Clothing, jewelry and money valued at several hundreds of dollars were missing. The two new lodgers failed to return.

TEACHERS TAKE NIGHT RIDE THEN QUIT THEIR JOBS

Principal at Steele, Mo., and Woman Assistant Resign by Request.

STEELE, Mo., Sept. 11.—The resignation, at the request of the Board of Directors, of Prof. R. J. Hubbard, principal of the Steele public school, and his assistant, Miss Alma McKay, has created a sensation.

Prof. Hubbard and Miss McKay are said to have hired a livery rig late Thursday evening, ostensibly to go to Tarbro, Ark., a few miles southwest of Steele. They are said to have arrived at their respective boarding houses at daybreak yesterday with conflicting stories. Investigations resulted in a request for their resignations.

Prof. Hubbard has a wife and grown children at Blythesville, Ark.

Miss McKay taught at Cooter, a neighboring town, last year, and her work in the Steele school seemed satisfactory. The story of the cause of her resignation, together with the fact that she and the professor both were church workers, came as a complete surprise.

Prof. Hubbard stands high as a member of the Odd Fellows lodge and an excellent instructor. Steele is now without school teachers.

BUSINESS WOMAN WHO DROWNED SELF INSANE, JURY'S VERDICT

Miss Emma Feldman Disappeared Wednesday Night, Body Found in River.

Miss Emma Feldman, who disappeared from her home, 2223 Hickory street Wednesday, and whose body was found floating in the Mississippi River at the River des Peres Friday afternoon, committed suicide while temporarily insane, according to the verdict of the Coroner's jury Saturday.

The verdict was rendered after the jury had heard the evidence of Mrs. Henry Schoettler, a sister, living at 3014 St. Vincent avenue, who said that for more than three weeks before her disappearance the young woman had been suffering from nervous prostration, and that members of the family watched her to prevent her from committing suicide.

She evaded them Wednesday, and when no trace of her was found that night, members of the family feared she had ended her life.

Worries incident to the management of a large clothes cleaning establishment for 10 years, was given by her sister as the cause of her nervous condition.

Student, Victor Over Two Instructors, Shot When He Drew Knife on New Man.

GRAVETTE, Ark., Sept. 11.—John Butram, a pupil, was killed yesterday by his teacher, A. T. Kelly, at the edge of McDonald County, Missouri.

Butram had caused the teachers of the "Bean Hollow" school considerable trouble and had succeeded in thrashing two of them. When Kelly took the school he went "prepared to teach."

Young Butram is said to have announced that there would be no school yesterday and Kelly insisted that the session would continue as usual.

During the discussion Butram drew a knife, whereupon Kelly shot him. Kelly surrendered.

DECISION PAVES WAY FOR MILK PROSECUTIONS

City Chemist Is Encouraged When Judge Klene Fines Eight Dealers.

After a decision Saturday by Judge Klene in the Court of Criminal Correction, sustaining the milk ordinances of St. Louis, City Chemist Thomas A. Buckland announced that he would start prosecutions against every milk dealer in the city who sold milk below the standard established by ordinance.

"Until this decision," said Mr. Buckland, "we have been working pretty much in the dark. The Supreme Court had decided against ordinances similar to these, and the milk dealers contended these were unconstitutional. Now that the court has passed on them we will begin many prosecutions."

Judge Klene's decision was handed down in eight cases appealed from police courts. He sustained each conviction in the lower court.

A fine of $25 each was entered against George Miln of 2807 Texas avenue, William Hei of 4415 North Taylor avenue, Herman Schulte of 4453 North Taylor avenue, Frank Schwalke of 2524 Bernays avenue and George Varwig of 4842 Natural Bridge road for selling skimmed milk, to which water had been added.

Ernest Kleen of 4223 Natural Bridge road was fined $25 for selling cream below the standard.

John H. Schulte of 4468 Carter avenue and Earnest Schwarz of 6310 North Newstead avenue were each fined $100 for selling milk containing formaldehyde to preserve it.

AN OPPORTUNITY THAT HAS PASSED.

"Nothing so well indicates the great opportunity that still exists in America," says Henry Clews, the banker and broker, "as the rise of Mr. Harriman, the son of a quiet country clergyman."

The opportunity to do what Mr. Harriman did does not now exist, as it did when Mr. Harriman entered upon his larger career as a railroad king, and we cherish the belief that the measure of such opportunities will steadily diminish in this country. We indulge the hope that no man will ever again be able to create monopoly, accumulate hundreds of millions and despoil the public by the watering and manipulating of railroad stocks.

Fortunately, the exposure of Mr. Harriman's operations enlightened the people on the nature of the opportunity he grasped. It proved to them the insufficiency of our corporation laws and the inefficiency of the enforcement of the laws we have. It showed them the tremendous public spoliation involved in high finance, and especially in the handling of great railroad properties.

We hold fast to the hope that there will always be in this country opportunity for men of energy and ability to win the highest legitimate rewards of their gifts and labors and to advance themselves while contributing to the progress of the nation. But sound progress demands the eliminating of monopoly domination and spoliation through lack or defiance of law; through the unscrupulous methods of high finance and the manipulation of stocks and bonds. Until we come to the basis of legitimate rewards for honest work, we fail to realize the opportunity which all men should share, and the full fruits of civilization.

The Interstate Commerce Commission may now take a vacation.

WELL BORN AND LOWLY BORN.

Stung by some caustic comments by Prof. Armstrong of Chicago on woman's sphere, powers and capacity for education, Mrs. Catherine Waugh McCulloch makes the remarkable statement that "the college woman's one child is of much more value to the world than the numerous progeny of the ignorant and downtrodden."

Did Mrs. McCulloch imbibe this misinformation in college? A child's history of the United States would correct this error of resentment and reckless culture.

The American men who have proved of most value to the world have been the sons of poor women, most of whom have been very hard workers. Their children have had the advantage of a hard discipline of actualities, an advantage which the "well-born" boy who has everything done for him does not enjoy. A mention of Lincoln, Jackson, Clay and Webster is sufficient. Their families were poor, some of them wretchedly poor.

In France who has done the work since the Revolution? The successful politicians have, almost all of them, been peasants. So have the men of science. Among men of letters the "well-born" man is the exception.

In England the aristocracy has, in all ages, been recruited from the middle classes, which in turn draws upon the artisans and tradesmen and even laborers. John Burns, a member of the British Cabinet, was a common dock laborer. William Court Gully, eminent lawyer, Speaker of the House of Commons for ten years and raised to the peerage in 1905 as Viscount Selby, is the grandson of a prize fighter. Carlyle was a peasant, Burke an adventurer, Johnson a poverty-stricken scribbler. The English gentleman has always been a strong character, but there has always been a considerable quantity of lowly red blood in his veins, and it should not be forgotten that William the Conqueror, who was one of the world's great workers, was born of a tanner's daughter out of wedlock.

Of course when poverty becomes so unfathomable that degeneracy sets in, the child is at a disadvantage, but lowly birth is, on the whole, not a hindrance. The truth is, considering the circumstances, the well-born youth deserves special credit when he overcomes the influence of his early environment.

A good family has been defined as "one no member of which has done anything worth mentioning for a long time." This is not a mere gibe. There is a deal of truth in it, especially in this country. In spite of her advanced views on suffrage and feminine education, Mrs. McCulloch is a very old-fashioned woman. Her views properly belong within the covers of Jane Austen's novels.

Many other American girls have married foreign noblemen who were merely pretenders, so the newly-created princess has done nothing unusual in wedding a pretender to a throne. He is as far from the throne as other fortune hunters have been from what they pretended to be.

HADLEY AND THE WHISKY MEN.

A proposal from the Liquor Dealers' Association to make a friendly test case of the new law taxing brewers, rectifiers, distillers and wholesalers of liquor was frowned on by Excise Commissioner Caulfield. It is reported that Mr. Caulfield said no State official should agree to make a test case on a law; his duty was to enforce it.

That is a simple and correct view to take. Executive officials are charged with no obligation to consider the necessity, desirability or constitutionality of a law. Their one duty is to enforce the law. They are not obligated to consider consequences or the feelings or pockets of the individuals whom enforcement of a law will most particularly affect. Why deal with the liquor men in this way?

Unwittingly Mr. Caulfield, in stating that the only duty of a State official is to enforce the law, entered on the record a stinging criticism of both himself and Gov. Hadley. These two State officials in consultation with representatives of the liquor interests present an undignified spectacle. Nothing could be more preposterous than an effort by the Governor of a State to ascertain the pleasure of affected persons before proceeding to enforce a law which those persons have formally declined to obey. It is as preposterous that these interests should stipulate the closing of illicit lid clubs as the price of their obedience to the tax law.

This picture of Gov. Hadley proselyting among the liquor men and vainly endeavoring to make a dent in their adamant creed, would be comedy if it were not for the suggestion of tragedy.

Window glass manufacturers of Ohio have followed the window glass manufacturers of Pennsylvania and West Virginia in advancing prices from 7½ to 15 per cent. Window glass in the smaller sizes was one of the articles on which the duty was revised downward. Much ado was made about this notable concession, and it was confined to the smaller sizes because, as the standpatters argued, it would benefit the poor man. This action of the manufacturers makes it perfectly plain that the excess of protection is still so great that trust extortion is not affected in the least.

A LESSON FROM KANSAS CITY.

By a vote of 20 to 1 the people of Kansas City approved the new union depot and terminal ordinance which was submitted to them for a decision. Such an overwhelming vote of approval is convincing testimony of a popular belief that the terms of the ordinance give no unfair advantage to the franchise getters and that the interests of the public are amply safeguarded.

The method of reaching this settlement was simple. There was an orderly and business-like investigation of the situation and an accurate computation of the value of the work to both the interested parties. The railroads made no denial that the privileges sought would be of great value to them; the city admitted that it would also be greatly benefited. Each gave according to the advantages gained. Both will profit according to the investment made.

The whole is in excellent illustration of the simplicity which may characterize the contracts between cities and corporations when negotiations are conducted in the proper spirit and with full appreciation of the mutuality of the obligations. St. Louis could do what Kansas City has done if it would go about it in the same way. St. Louis wants nothing from the Terminal Association to which it is not entitled and the Terminal Association should ask nothing from St. Louis which is not fair. Broken promises and repudiated agreements should be adjusted, but the record of the past must not be permitted to impede progress toward a rational program framed to meet present necessities and future needs. Kansas City has shown how such matters may be settled.

So long as "Uncle Joe" remains Speaker advocates of the popular election of United States senators will encounter one argument hard to answer.

THE MAKING OF A REAL MAN.

The most notable English pageants of a period in which pageants are growing in favor is that of September 18, this year, at Litchfield. Two hundred years ago Samuel Johnson was born in this then obscure English town, three years after Benjamin Franklin was born in the then obscure New England village of Boston.

All that Johnson did for literature and for science are of less importance now than that though he had the worst "disadvantages of birth," he had the making of a man in him. His disadvantages were not only those of poverty and obscurity, but of hereditary disease which science now uses as a test of degeneracy. By the standards of the present as of his own time, he was born one of the most unfit among the unfittest, but meeting at every step the most adverse conditions, repressive as a system organized for centuries, he made himself a real man, who, in becoming so, showed what manhood means in the type.

After 200 years, regardless of what he did for science and literature, it is an inspiration to love him for his manhood, and it is to forgive him everything in which he fell short of what he wished to make himself. In his case, as in that of his contemporary, Franklin, we can learn after two centuries what the making of a man means in strength, in courage and in the highest of all qualities, the endurance which increases with adversity until in the end it wears out adversity and explains the heroic, latent in all manhood.

Of all they have to boast after 200 years, Litchfield and Boston have no other boast now as high as that they make in claiming Johnson and Franklin as their products. The Litchfield pageant means that the highest product of civilization is a real man.

Any disposition to credit Morgan, Frick, et al. with altruistic motives in preventing a slump in stocks following Harriman's death would better be checked until the market has found its real level. If there is ground for the belief that the Harriman properties are not as valuable or as desirable since the death of the controlling genius, artificial stimulation and manipulation will not prevent a fall in stock values. It is not the first time that the money kings have intervened to prevent sudden drops in values, and there is no reason now to believe that they did anything but take advantage of an opportunity to assert their power because it suited their selfish purposes. If there was no particular reason why stocks should go down as the result of Harriman's death there was no reason why they should have gone to such a point as they reached Friday instantly. The upward movement was due to nothing but powerful manipulation, and the same powers will let the stocks drop again when it is to their advantage to do so.

Harriman died from overwork. Robert G. Ingersoll once said: "Imagine a man with two hundred thousand hats, three hundred thousand neckties, five hundred thousand pairs of trousers and a million handkerchiefs getting up at 6 o'clock and struggling hard all day to buy himself another necktie." He put the idea in tangible form and illustrated the absurdity of accumulating money for money's sake. But men like Harriman care little for the money; they enjoy the game, the winning and the power they acquire.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

Should Be Well Paid.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I wish to thank the Post-Dispatch for the kind editorial in Wednesday evening's issue in regard to the dangerous work and poor pay of electricians. They risk their lives every day for a mere living wage. Their wives and families cannot be even reasonably sure of ever seeing them alive again when they leave home in the morning. Why cannot employers be just and pay these poor men in accordance with the great risk they run in following this occupation. It is not all men that can work at this trade, as it requires them to live a steady, sober life, in order that they may keep a cool head and good nerves. AN ELECTRICIAN'S WIFE.

A Lonely Wife.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Have been married two years. My husband travels and is only home about every three months, and then only for a couple of days. All the rest of the time I am alone. Of course I can do as I please, but as a married woman my pleasures must necessarily be restricted. My husband seems devoted the few days he is home, writes to me every day and gives me $100 a month out of his salary for my own use. I am thinking of asking him to get a divorce. He could sue me for desertion. We get along nicely the two days he is in and neither are of a disposition to fuss. My only complaint is I am left alone too much. I need company, both ladies and gentlemen. I think too much of myself and of my husband's name to accept any attention paid me as a married woman. Would like the opinion of some broad-minded readers. Would not expect or accept alimony. UNDECIDED.

Polite Street Car Employes.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Having noticed several articles printed in regard to polite employes of the United Railways Co., and having had the opportunity of seeing honesty and politeness both rendered the public Saturday night, without a word of appreciation to the young man who rendered it, leads me to believe that the patrons are very greatly responsible for the impatient and unaccommodating street car men of the city, and what I want to say is for the benefit of the public. I boarded a Page car at Sixth and Washington Saturday night about 11:30, with three other young men, gave the conductor a half dollar, saying to him, "Four fares," with my mind on a seat. I forgot my change, going to the front of the car, where we secured seats. I had not been there long before I was accosted by the conductor, who handed me 30 cents, telling me I left my change. I am sorry to say I never even thanked him. There seemed to be a great many men under the influence of intoxicants. I noticed the conductor come into the car at four diffrcent places between Jefferson avenue and Taylor, arousing some man from his stupor and letting him off at the place I suppose he requested to be let off on entering the car. Not one word of thanks did he get. But when we got to Taylor avenue some man came to himself who ought to have been awake at Sarah street and began to abuse the conductor. I could not help but sympathize with the young man. He had waked four out of five and attended his other duties, too. But he did not seem to lose his patience, but took everything good naturedly. Now this young man, whose badge number is 1591, may be new in the service and while he is striving to give the public good service, which means good service for the company, such treatment (I mean unthankful treatment) for the accommodations rendered, and a bawling out for an accommodation missed, will soon be so straining upon his nerves that he will think, like lots of others, he is only there to take the nickels, and let the patrons look out for themselves. Now, how easy would it be for us to show our appreciation by kindly thanking the boys in blue for the accommodations we receive from then, and not be so quick to bawl them out for the little things that we are as much responsible for as they. I, for one, hereafter shall be more particular and if ever I meet that conductor I owe him an apology. A PASSENGER.

Postal Deficit.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In a recent editorial in your paper, you made the suggestion that one way to overcome the annual deficit in the Postoffice Department would be to reduce expenditures. I venture to say that any future Postmaster-General cannot accomplish any material reduction of the annual deficit, unless the laws governing the administration and working of the Postoffice are radically changed, without seriously impairing the efficiency of the service. One of the causes of the deficit is the immense amount of second-class matter, which is handled for a great deal less than the actual cost of the service. Another cause is the rural delivery, which, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1908, according to Postmaster-General Meyer's report for that year, showed an expenditure of, approximately, $35,000,000, with an income of about $5,000,000 annually. The mail sent free of postage by the different departments of the Government (State, Treasury, Interior, etc.) amounts to about $12,000,000. If this amount was charged up to different departments wherein the mail matter originates, as it properly should be, it would swell the expenditures of those departments, but would cause quite a diminution of the postal deficit. Your suggestion of a parcels post would, if carried out, not only remove the deficit and create a surplus, but would be vastly beneficial to great masses of people. But what right have the 90,000,000 citizens of our country to expect their interests to be considered when those interests are directly opposed to the interests of the great and powerful Express Trust? M. H.

City Pay Days.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I would like to ask one question: Why is it that the Waterworks employes are always the last on the city's payroll to receive their monthly salaries, as it makes more money for the city than any other industry, and why is it, when a payday falls on a holiday or Saturday they can't be paid the day before, as the police force is? Look at our July payday, which fell on Saturday, and Monday was celebration day; so therefore all but the clerks and bosses who could get away went down to the City Hall and got theirs; the others had to wait until the 7th. Many little children were disappointed. But before election if that pay falls wrong they are paid a day ahead of time, or two days if necessary. This looks bad. As our October payday falls on Sunday, why not treat us, for once, and pay us before the big week, so we can entertain our visiting friends without going in debt? Remember, the Centennial is to boost the city. A FIREMAN'S WIFE.

THE SURVIVOR.

"NOTHING TO ARBITRATE."

From the New York World.

After two months the McKees Rocks strike has been settled by the Pressed Steel Car Co. granting practically all the demands of the men. The strike was marked by much violence and no little bloodshed. The company's property was well protected by its own police and the State constabulary. It made every effort to keep the works going by employing men brought from a distance. Yet, without organization or even leadership, and united only by a bitter sense of their wrongs, the strikers held together successfully to the end.

At the very start President Hoffstot declared, "There is nothing to arbitrate." No such exhibition of corporation arrogance has been seen since President Baer's stupid performance at the time of the anthracite coal strike in 1902. At McKees Rocks the Pressed Steel Car Co. notoriously employed the most ignorant and cheapest foreign labor. In common justice the men were entitled to a hearing. President Hoffstot would have nothing to do with them, he would explain nothing, he would not treat with them nor receive their representatives. He deliberately precipitated a strike and after the men struck denied that there existed any foundation for their complaints.

DR. WILEY AND BENZOATE.

From the Washington Herald.

Whatever conventions, assemblies, or individuals may resolve or say, the public will incline to thank Dr. Wiley for his valiant effort to show up the possible evils of foods preserved with benzoate of soda.

From the very first moment of Dr. Wiley's crusade against such commercial products, he has been hampered in his endeavors to get the simple, plain, unvarnished truth concerning benzoate compounds before the people in an understandable and intelligent manner. He has been abused, scoffed at, and ridiculed. Every conceivable method, seemingly, has been employed to discredit him. He has been designated a crank, a mountebank, and a faddist. His opinions have been discounted wherever possible.

COOK-PEARY IS ENOUGH.

From the Boston Herald.

Thought it was about time for a revival of the controversy whether or not Gen. Miles put the irons on Jeff Davis. The Alabama clergyman who bobs up with it this time doesn't add much new material when he connects Assistant Secretary of War Charles A. Dana with the transaction.

MUSIC HATH CHARMS.

From the Washington Star.

"So you are fond of music?"

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum, "I have the highest regard for it. When you go home and meet a crowd of constituents there is nothing like a brass band to take their minds off the explanations they have been looking for."

MERELY A SUGGESTION.

From the Riverton (Wyo.) News.

If Jimmy Moore can't wait until the sun goes down before he starts in every night to squeeze Mamie Snigt's slats on the Methodist Church steps he had better cut it out altogether or build a hugging booth of his own.

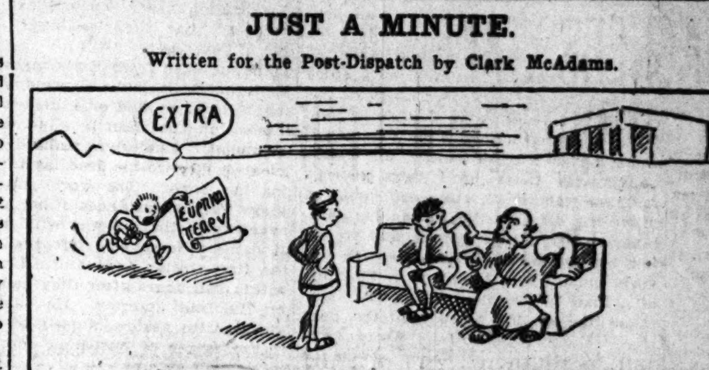

OBSCURED.

From the Chattanooga Times.

We forgot to mention our strenuous huntsman, who has been doing some important, if not so heroic and hazardous, stunts with his rifle in Africa; he's coming home shortly, too, and will have to be received along with the rest.

JUST A MINUTE.

SOCRATES ON THE POLAR DISPUTE.

GLAUCON (buying an extra): What do you think of the North Pole row?

SOCRATES: I think Peary is making a great mistake to come home.

THRASYMACHUS: You think Cook found the pole?

SOCRATES: Certainly. Let us look it over a bit.

POLEMARCHUS: By all means

SOCRATES: Cook had previously gone with Peary.

GLAUCON: Yes.

SOCRATES: They had fallen out.

THRASYMACHUS: True.

SOCRATES: A strong personal rivalry had arisen between them.

GLAUCON: Yes.

SOCRATES: Good. It therefore follows that aside from wishing to win the pole, each man wanted to eliminate the other.

POLEMARCHUS: Of course.

SOCRATES: So that each of them had not only to consider the means of winning the goal itself, but had also to think how he could exclude the other from any part of the glory.

THRASYMACHUS: True.

SOCRATES: Very well. Cook was the first to set out. He was familiar with the route along which Peary had been working.

GLAUCON: Yes.

SOCRATES: He reached the pole; but he had not eliminated Peary.

POLEMARCHUS: No.

SOCRATES: He knew that if he could get to the pole in that way, Peary also could do it.

THRASYMACHUS: No doubt.

SOCRATES: He also knew something of Peary's irascibility and his disposition to regard the discovery of the pole as his own inalienable right.

POLEMARCHUS: He did.

SOCRATES: Did it not then become a question with Cook when Peary would better hear that the pole had been found, with a view to its probable effect upon him?

GLAUCON: I don't think we understand you there, Socrates.

SOCRATES: I will make it plain. If Cook had returned the way he went in he would have met Peary.

THRASYMACHUS: Yes.

SOCRATES: Whereupon Peary, hearing from the successful party that the pole had been found, would have hurried up there and back, and would have become a formidable rival for Cook's glory.

POLEMARCHUS: Unquestionably. We have already seen a disposition to give him equal credit.

SOCRATES: Exactly. Therefore, Cook got himself lost in the ice.

GLAUCON: He did not want to meet Peary.

SOCRATES: Of course not. He wanted Peary to go on to the pole, believing himself the first man to reach it. Then the adroit Cook would dash for a cable station and announce the discovery, with the result that when Peary came up with his belated news, what with having been beaten and being wholly unprepared for the revelation, he would experience disappointment and rage beyond discreet forbearance, and try to discredit Cook.

THRASYMACHUS: And thus eliminate himself.

SOCRATES: Precisely.

GLAUCON: By Jove! Socrates, I believe you have it.

SOCRATES: It is good of you to say so, Glaucon. Now let us go around to the new Democratic State hindquarters and see the paraphernalia with which battles are lost.

Tenant: Have you any idea where the rent money comes from?

Landlord: Of course not.

Tenant: I'll tell you. I make it exhibiting my home as a ruin.

"I suppose the Browns have a good many relations one way and another here in the city."

"Yes, there were [illegible] people out to the double-header yesterday."

C. C. B. B.—Longitude is the distance between any place and some prime meridian, expressed in degrees, minutes and seconds. Latitude is the distance between any place and the equator, expressed in degrees, minutes and seconds. If we wish to define the exact location of any place on the earth's surface we must give its latitude and longitude. Degrees of latitude are of nearly equal length, about 69 miles. As the meridians come together at the poles, degrees of longitude decrease from a length of 69 miles at the equator to nothing at the poles.

NOVELS OF THE MOMENT

A New Trilby—The Attempt of Elsa Barker to Reincarnate Christ—The Wandering and Elusive Cuckoo a Symbol of Love—Latest Fall Publications Reviewed

By POST-DISPATCH CRITICS.

ANDRE CASTAIGNE, who draws pictures, has written a novel of the vaudeville stage as fascinating as Du Maurier's 15-year-old "Trilby," full of the odor from the theater, snappy as a well played show. "The Bill-Toppers" begins in New Zealand in the first days of the trick bicycle rider. Clifton is a rider; his wife becomes his stage partner till Lily, their child, grows old enough to be an infant phenom. Then Ma retires and Pa becomes Lily's manager. They exhaust Australian possibilities, India and South Africa circus tours and attack the States, entering at San Francisco. Laws against infant phenoms send them to Mexico, where they meet Trampy Wheelpad, a journalist, comedian, trick cyclist and devotee of girls! girls! Lily and Trampy become great pals in secret. Ma watches jealously. Pa watches. They meet Ave Marie and her cruel taskmaster brother, Martello, Nunkie and the Three Graces, lots of "sisters," brothers," trios et cet. Clifton takes his wonder to London. He finds troupes are the fashion and gathers a bunch of "woolly-legs" to serve as a bike riding background for the the incomparable Lily. There is competition—the Pawnees, the Laurence, others. Pa drives Lily and the "woolly-legs" with his belt, makes them learn new tricks. Smackings often, hard work always, great romps sometimes. Lily cooks while Ma lies abed. One of the woolly-legs falls into a bicycle wreck, loses an eye and being given a glass substitute becomes Glass-eye and Lily's maid. Lily is known as the New Zealander on Wheels. She meets Trampy, who pays clandestine court. Ma becomes aware and raises Cain. Lily elopes with Trampy to Germany. He goes rusty, becomes abusive and always insatiably a devotee of girls! girls! Lily has a short period of rest but is forced back on the bike, rebels and flees from Trampy. Goes back to England on a thousand marks got from Jimmy, an old admirer. Tries briefly to be friends with Pa and Ma, leaves them in great anger. Plays all the English circuits, Paris, Spain. Comes upon a period of no engagements, no money. Jimmy has invented tricks; is famous, she finds that Trampy, who pursues her, was married to Ave Marie in the States, finds the wife and dramatically confronts him. Jimmy puts her on as a bill-topper or as we have it in American theaters, a headliner, in a trick he has invented: the aerobike, an aeroplane for theater use. Harrasford "remodels" a theater to use the trick, cuts a hole in the roof out of which the aerobike flies with Lily, who, by a pulley system, is quickly restored to the stage in a blinding glamor of electric lights according to a scheme devised by the marvelous Jimmy. Great triumph over everything and everybody, over Ma and Pa in especial with their footy rotters the New Trickers and Lily's cousin, Daisy Woollylegs. Jossers on the papers give her a big hand and Jimmy tells her that he loves her. Curtain. (Bobbs-merrill.)

An Oldfashion Tale.

"Irene of the Mountains" George Cary Eggleston has written a pleasing old-fashion love story that has an ending as happy as any romantic miss could wish. He has also given more than a glimpse of life in Virginia before the war and has drawn what seems to be an accurate picture of the mountaineers. He shows them at home and abroad, at work and at play and explains how political battles were won and lost. He has an annoying habit at times of explaining the dialect he employs, dialect readily understood by the intelligent reader. These explanations make paragraphs of the book read like one of the "papers" that used to be given to Sunday School scholars. Irene is a mountain girl with a strain of aristocratic blood in her makeup. She becomes a member of one of the F. F. V.'s and an aristocrat herself, but is strong enough to stand by her home people when the test is made. It is a slight story, but readable. (Lothrop, Lee, Shepard.)

"If Christ Came to New York."

IF your religious nerves are near the surface do not read "The Son of Mary Bethel," by Elsa Barker. Many sorts of Christians will be woefully shocked by its parallelism with the story of Jesus. As Flemish and German artists have painted Christ surrounded by peasants of Western Europe—stilling a storm upon the Rhine, convicting a rich man of his extortions in a Belgian taproom, defending a Tyrolean woman of sin from the crude penalty her neighbors would inflict—so Miss Barker has depicted Jesus reincarnated as a Vermont carpenter's son going to his death in New York City that she might convict Americans today of the sins Christians realize afflicted the Jewish people in Jesus' day. Jesse Bethel is the son of Mary. He is loved by Mary Magnus, whose sad story suggests the Magdalene. He is a mystic from babyhood; he becomes a carpenter. At the age of 12 he astonishes the faculty of a medical college into which he wanders while on an excursion to the large town near his home. His parents searching for him find him in the college surrounded by admiring doctors and philosophers. A hermit known only as John and called mad preaches in the mountains, "going before" one greater than himself. Another John, a Peter, a Thomas, an Andrew, a James and a man not overly honest, who is known as Judson (a Judas at last) go with Jesse to the place where the hermit John is preaching and are baptised by him—Jesse last. The hermit recognizes in Jesse the teacher greater than himself of whose coming he has prophesied. Jesse goes into the mountains, fasts and searches his heart for 40 days. He has developed strange power and in the mountains he is tempted as was the master to advance himself in material things, but triumphs over the tempter and goes down to his ministry. He raises Laurence Lane from the dead and gathers about him a band of devoted disciples and followers. He goes to New York, where his preaching is misunderstood. He is condemned by a magistrate and in a riot killed by a policeman's club.

Those persons who will be shocked by the author's audacious parallels will miss the truth in the novel. They will fail to see that if Christ came to Vermont or New York or Missouri or St. Louis he would fare now as in Jerusalem 1900 years ago. That is Miss Barker's message, and it is conveyed to the reader of open mind with fine art. Her second message, that through purity of life, loftiness and selflessness of purpose men of today may accomplish as miraculously as Christ and his disciples, is not so simply presented. Her atmosphere is compounded with such perfect sense of proportion that no incident—not even the mystic presence at the baptism of Jesse—jars in relation to the modern life and near geography of the story. (Duffield.)

The Elusive Bird.

O BLITHE New-Comer! I have heard,
I hear thee and rejoice.
O Cuckoo, shall I call the Bird
Or but a wandering voice?

To seek thee I did often rove
Through woods and on the green;
And thou wert still a hope, a love;
Still longed for—never seen.

THESE lines by Wordsworth supply a key to "The Cuckoo's Nest," by Martha Gilbert Dickinson Bianchi. Love is but a cuckoo's voice, a wandering inclination, elusive, constantly pursued but never captured. Arthur Johnston, an American writer whose lungs are weak, his wife whose money makes life easy for him, and Mary Ingram, the daughter of a chief justice engaged to a man as old as her father, are in Europe for the summer. At Monte Carlo they find Vera, who is Arthur's foster sister. She is married to Paul, Count de Hauteville, whose great passions are devotion to his wife and gambling. Vera was the first love of Arthur Johnston. She is surrounded by men who adore her, but is the one personage in the cast who is singularly faithful. Paul is to her the one man in the world; there never was another. In Paul's background there have been several, and one castoff mistress still tries to prove her affection by paying his gambling losses. Arthur comes near to losing his head over Vera; his wife reverts mentally to toying with thoughts of a man in America who would have taken her in his arms had she been free. Mary Ingram falls away from faith to her ancient fiance under the wooing of Col. Lyndon-Carr, British soldier on leave. In the end her old lover comes too late. Mrs. Johnston discovers that he is the man who offered devotion to her, Vera misunderstands her husband and becomes so jealous that she drives him to suicide. The illness of one of the Johnston children brings the parents back to America and clears their brain and unites their hearts.

As a picture of life among the haut ton of Monte Carlo, the novel is perhaps unequaled. As a study of such contrasting personages as the British gorgon Lady Kintore, the New England Alice Johnston, the ex-patriate Vera, the French Helene Preville, it is keenly satisfying. Constructively the story lacks cohesion. It wins, however, through abundant cleverness. (Duffield).

Noyes' Great Epic.

"DRAKE," by Alfred Noyes, one of the English poets of today, is the most audacious literary venture of the year—an English epic in blank verse with lyric interludes, the whole as complacently reaching a length of 343 pages as if this money-making generation cared the snap of its finger for such things.

It's good reading, too, barring a certain venom that seems to be provoked by the author's Church of England fear of Catholicism's gain of English proselytes. This leads to numerous outbreaks against "Popery" and causes the use of much black paint in depicting the horrors of the Spanish Inquisition, yet, when one gets out from under the war of creeds and sails the seas with fine old Sir Francis Drake, buccaneer and later British Admiral, the atmosphere is stimulating. Mr. Noyes puts a deal of the ocean swing and the compelling rush of Atlantic and Spanish Main gales into his verse, there's a lot of good fighting, the volleying of sea ordnance at close range, the grappling of ships deck to deck and the wild clash of cutlasses hand to hand, all of which is now impossible, yet none the less picturesque and pulse-quickening.

Especially thrilling is the long metrical account of how Drake and his splendid captains engaged and held the ships of the Spanish Armada back from the coasts of England until the coming of that vast storm which sent the Spaniards to wreck and ruin on those same coasts. Nowhere does the poem attain true epic greatness, but it is respectable at all moments and distinctly appealing to the imagination. England's at a mighty low ebb-tide of militant spirit if such a poem doesn't help to make her seadogs more than ever resolute to hold the ocean's sovereignty secure under the Union Jack. There's an American prologue voicing the most ardent liking for America as the author's "western sweetheart" and England's daughter, who shares in the glory of Drake's achievements. (Stokes.)

A Coward Man.

THE worst thing that Margaret Pargeter had ever done was to marry Tom Pargeter, an Englishman with a £1,000,000, a child's sense of responsibility and an indifference to his wife that almost justified her in seeking the companionship of Laurence Vanderlyn, the young American embassy attache in Paris.

Margaret and Laurence always kept their friendship in proper bounds, even if it had run on for many years. They were so discreet that not even their friends found food for gossip in anything they did.

But Margaret grew restive under the restraints of propriety. There came a time when she longed to yield to the suit of the young diplomat, whom she had always kept at a respectable distance, though she sincerely loved him. The longing was so strong that she even proposed that they go away together for a few days.

They started from Paris together, but the excitement of the elopement was too much for her and she died of heart disease on the train in a private compartment. Vanderlyn realized that his greatest duty to the dead lay in protecting her honor. The world must never know the circumstances of her end, must never know that he was with her when it came. He quietly left the train at the first station and returned to Paris, within two hours after they had started on the fatal journey. He hastened to his club, to assure himself of an alibi if the finger of suspicion should ever be pointed at him.

Then he matched his wits against those of the police and press for days, his endurance strained almost to the breaking point by living an incredibly clever lie to save the honor of a woman, who died almost in his arms. In the end, he wins.

This is "The Uttermost Farthing," by Mrs. Belloc Lowndes. It is a thrilling and absorbing story. (Mitchell Kennerley).

A Scream.

"OH! CHRISTINA!" by J. J. Bell, is a scream. "Mind yer nut, auntie!" she cries; "I'm gaun to drap this yin." A large empty cardboard box fell at the spinster's feet. "Christina, I cannot allow you to address me in that disrespectful fashion!" Miss Purvise cried indignantly. "Mind my nut, indeed! What do you mean by it?" "Och, ye ken fine what yer nut is, auntie. Staun' back a bit. I'm guan to drap anither yin (one). What d'ye keep a' auld emp'y boaxes for? Eh? My!" went on Christina, without waiting for an answer, "there's an awfu' ribbidge up here! I suppose ye've never cleaned this shelf afore. See the dirt!" She swept a heavy cloud of dust from the shelf. "That'll be 10 year auld onywey"——. Christina has come from Glasgow six months before, and her aunt, who is a genteel little storekeeper at Kilhabeg, a west coast village near Edinburg, has undertaken to raise her. The adventures of this lovable spinster, what with Christina and a romance on her hands at the same time, make a little book which, perhaps, reaches back for books of this size and quality to "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch." (Revell.)

A Modern Indian.

WHILE we continually hear of the backsliding Carlisle student, how many of us ever realize that the Indian, perhaps, is the most anomalous of Americans? No such gulf divides him from the whites as confronts the Negro; and yet, as we saw in "Strongheart," we have not yet admitted him an equal. This is a field for thought and pathos in which Frederick R. Burton is something of a literary pioneer. He is the author of "Strongheart," and has now written "Red Cloud of the Lakes," a story of the Ojibways. It spans three generations in an Ojibway family, marking the descent from the barbarism to which the red man was suited to the civilization which he is incapable of finding a place. It is a very readable book. (Dillingham.)

Partners in Crime.

The hard-looking customer had been arrested for stealing an umbrella.

"What have you to say for yourself?" asked the Police Justice. "Are you guilty or not guilty?"

"I'm one o' the guilty ones, Y'r Honor, I reckon,' answered the prisoner. "The umbrella had the name of J. Thompson on the handle, G. H. Brickley stamped on the inside o' the cover, an' I stole it from a man named Quimby."—Chicago Tribune.

HOW A PRINTER BECAME KING

Being (It Is Claimed) a True Recital of What Happened to Two St. Louis Linotype Operators on an Island in the South Seas As Told in the Printing Trades Magazine.

By W. H. CRAWFORD.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING INSTALLMENT.

Bob Robbins tells the story. He and Harry Beltzig, printers on the Republic, decide suddenly to go to New York City. While there they befriend Capt. Anderson of the bark Polly Ann and are invited on board. Anderson forgets his guests and sails while they sleep. When they awake they decide to continue the voyage with him. The bark is wrecked in the Pacific on Cocose Island. They meet natives who take them in hand.

PART II.

"DURING the excitement of landing and other incidents which followed, I had eaten nothing for several hours and the pangs of hunger began to assert themselves. So, not wishing to take a chance on a menu card the component parts of which I knew nothing, I took a number of the natives aboard our vessel and brought off quite a store of provisions and other articles for which I felt we might have future use. Among them were several Winchester rifles and a goodly stock of ammunition. As we were about to again go ashore I noticed a long package in the after cabin, which upon investigation proved to be rockets, which no doubt were carried as distress signals. Not knowing to what use they might be put I decided to take them with us, and subsequent events proved the wisdom of the move. Then we got under way. After we had traveled inland for something over an hour Beltzig began to show signs of fatigue, and as he wiped the perspiration from his forehead he observed: 'I guess we're going to see the secretary of the interior.'

Guests of Cocose King.

"Shortly we came in sight of the village nestled on the shores of a pretty lake. The huts were built of reeds and palm leaves and presented quite a picturesque and inviting appearance. It seems the news of our coming had been sent on ahead, for a party of eight whom I took to be chiefs from their decorations, came to meet us. The natives of our party, also those in the village, formed in two parallel lines and we were marched between them to the hut of the king. He greeted us cordially, and after curiously examining my rifle, which I had been allowed to retain, delivered quite a long speech. While I did not understand one word he said, from his gestures I took it he was glad we had come among them, and that we were free to go when and where we liked in his kingdom. I then beckoned to the king and his band of chiefs to follow me. Fastening my hat to a nearby tree, I slipped in a shell, walked away a few paces, made a few vaudeville movements and fired at the target. At the report of the rifle a number of the natives fell flat on their faces and all displayed great fear and wonderment. After showing the king how to shoot it, and holding the gun while he pulled the trigger, I placed the rifle in his hands and indicated by signs that it was a present to him. He was greatly pleased, stroking the barrel with his hands and acting like a child with a new toy. We made several other small presents to each of the chiefs, or house of delegates as Beltzig dubbed them, and he incidental remarked that I might get in bad for bribery. The afternoon was spent in looking over the island and swimming. The natives were surprised at our lack of proficiency in the aquatic art. As night drew on the moon came up like a large, red ball. All insect life seemed to have gone to rest and a state of peacefulness and quietude seemed to settle on the village.

Fight With Invaders.

"We retired to our hut, after enjoying an hour or so of the beautiful moonlight night, and were soon oblivious to our surroundings, wrapped in peaceful slumber. How long we slept I do not know, but we were suddenly awakened by a great hubbub, beating of tomtoms and shouting. We soon learned that a large party had come over from one of the neighboring islands, had attacked our village and carried off Wampumader and another chief. The former was the leader of the party that had captured us. Already the reflection from their fire on the shore could be seen, and I realized that prompt action was necessary if we wished to save these poor wretches from an awful fate. Instructing one of the chiefs to get his men together, Beltzig and I ran to our hut and secured two rifles and a lot of ammunition. I took two rockets from the package and returned to where the natives were assembled.

"About 250 yards from our hunt and between it and the point where the war party had landed was a hill thickly covered with trees and underbrush. To this we proceeded, and on reaching the top we found we had a commanding view of what was going on below only about forty yards distant. The two captives lay on the ground bound hand and foot, while a fiendish bunch of their enemies danced about them yelling and chanting war songs.

"Prints" Are Victorious.

"I laid one of the rockets across a low bush and so aimed it that it would strike as near the center of the war party as possible, at the same time instructing Beltzig to begin shooting as soon as the rocket was discharged. I applied the match to the rocket; there was a swish and a stream of fire shot out of the darkness. Beltzig's rifle cracked, then the rocket burst in their midst and vari-colored balls of fire scattered in every direction. The tumult and confusion which followed is beyond description, and the steady discharge of our rifles only added to their panic. Some ran to the boats, others sprang into the water and began swimming, towing their canoes and keeping well under water to protect themselves from the fiery demons that they thought were pursuing them.

"Needless to say, it was a complete rout, and leaving their prisoners and several dead behind them they were soon out of sight. We then went down to the shore, liberated the captives, who were half dead from fright, buried the dead savages and returned to our village.

"No more sleep that night. The natives built a huge fire and made a great seat of skins about it. The king himself escorted us to the seat of honor and the entire village paraded in a circle around us singing and dancing. Thus amid the most intense solemnities were we acclaimed the greatest warriors of the age.

Made King, With a "Sub."

"The following day we were summoned to the king's hut, where all the chiefs were assembled. As we entered each made a low bow. The king arose and began to speak. As he proceeded his hearers showed their approval by shouts and hand-clappings. When he ceased speaking the king came to where we were seated, took my arm and led me to the throne. After many facial contortions and much sign language I learned that I had been made king and had been chosen through the efforts of my predecessor. A robe of skins was placed beside the throne, and to this Beltzig was led. He was the 'sub' king.

Got a "Phat Take."

"The chiefs formed a line leading from the throne to the entrance to the hut, the rude portieres separated, and a dusky damsel attended by several ladies in waiting advanced with head bowed and arms extended. She was to be my queen. Wives on this island are valued according to their avoirdupois, and if this maiden didn't have the blue ribbon concealed on her person somewhere the judges at the last show were cheating—although she was so devoid of raiment that concealment of anything was out of the question.

"As she placed her hand in mine something akin to a shudder passed over me and a Dubachanalian utterance trembled on my lips. Beltzig's twitter-ing suggestion, 'Don't say you never got any phat,' added but little to my peace of mind. But it was up to me, and I made the best of the situation. The balance of the day was spent in feasting, singing and dancing.

Chesley Island on Cocose.

"The following day we took our guns and started on an exploring trip. As we emerged from a thicket we were startled by a loud grunt, and a wild boar ran across the clearing and disappeared in the underbrush. We started in pursuit and, after firing half a dozen shots, succeeded in killing him. Several natives who were in the vicinity came running to the scene and we turned the wild hog over to them to carry back to the village. When roasted it proved quite palatable. After we had finished our meal I noticed the natives carried away what was not eaten and threw it into a deep ravine some distance from the village. It was the Chesley Island of the place.

"Ham and" on Menu Card.

"Here is where Beltzig's Teutonic frugality stood us well in hand. In some of his wanderings he had discovered a cave in the side of one of the cliffs. Some twenty feet from the entrance to this cave a spring of water as cold as ice bubbled from the rock wall, forming a tiny rivulet which flowed across the cavern and disappeared in an underground passage. It was an ideal storehouse for our supplies of fresh meat, and to this day the natives bless the memory of the man who 'put them next' to the scheme. Beltzig had lived among the Germans of South St. Louis all his life and the application of his early training placed us a few days later in possession of some two dozen well-cured hams. On one of our trips to the hilly part of the island we discovered the nesting place of a colony of gulls and thereafter 'ham and eggs' was on our bill of fare.

King and "Sub" Lay Off.

"We had a grand time, but after spending a year or more in this land of plenty the novelty of it wore off and we found ourselves longing for the sight of a white face and for those environments of civilization which make life all that it is and all that it should be. The fates smiled upon us and several days later a merchant ship put in for a supply of fresh water and fruit. We sighted her when she was about three miles out, and the suspense was one of the trials of my life—what if she should not see our signals or should change her course? But on she came, without even a comma, or a pause of any kind, and dropped anchor in the bay. A boat was lowered and some half dozen lusty tars soon had it skimming over the water toward the island.

"We had a talk with the captain and he agreed to take us off, but we were in some doubt as to how the natives would take it to be deprived of their two chief men at one fell swoop, and especially such a benefactor as Beltzig had proven himself to be. After some deliberation I resolved to put a bold front on it, and calling a council of the ex-King and the other chief men I informed them of our plan, promising if I ever happened in that vicinity in the future I would drop in and see how they were getting along. Of course there were weeping and wailing for a time, but finally I succeeded in convincing them that it was for the best and we parted amid much lamentation on the part of the natives. The only articles I took with me that we had not brought were my crown and the seal ring I wore. Beltzig also brought his ring and robe of state.

"Finally we were on board the Pantheon, the anchor rattled on the chains and as the shades of night were falling we sailed away from the island to civilization, toil and mediocrity. As the shores of the little island faded from our view I could not repress a feeling of regret at parting from a loyal people who had been our friends in time of need—black of skin, but white of heart. Verily, 'tis a hard world and there is much truth in the saying that even the head that wears a crown is filled with discontent, for I have tried it and I know."

Then, with a sigh, he turned to the white-aproned minion and said: "Make mine a small one this time, and put most of the foam on the bottom."

CLEOPATRA'S DIARY

Transcribed From the Tablets for the Post-Dispatch

By HELEN ROWLAND.

JUST received this note from Marc Antony:

"My Dear Miss Ptolemy: Trust you will pardon my seeming haste, but simply MUST speak with you concerning something VERY important. Business, you know, before pleasure—and yet, I know of a charming little place in Crocodile avenue where we might discuss the matter over a goblet and a hot peacock at a cosy luncheon-a-deux. Let me know if you will come, and believe me always, faithfully your admirer, M. A."

Oh, Isis and Osiris! Where have I heard this BEFORE? And they told me Antony was a man of ORIGINAL ideas! Why EVERY man regards a woman as a kitten or a baby which must be fed and watered before it will sit up and look pleasant, the Sphinx only knows!

Later—Antony DOES know how to order a luncheon! Lizard soup a la Reine, peacock's brains on toast and dove's hearts souffle—SO dainty and not the least overdone. Wonder where he acquired the practice! No man ever ordered a luncheon like that for his wife. As Rameses said: "A wife can lead a husband to the restaurant, but she can't make him order champagne—unless it's another woman's husband."

Antony followed the usual line of talk, of course.

1. After the first glass. Remarked on the charming fit of my new tiger skin. Said it reminded him of Elinor Glyn.

2. After the second glass. Became confidential. Told me I looked like his mother—I looked like Caesar's mother, too—and how refreshing it was to have some mental companionship. Said he had yearned to meet me on account of my brilliant mind and sparkling wit. Later assured me that my brilliant eyes and sparkling teeth had quite satisfied the yearning.

3. After the third glass. Wanted me to call him "Marc."

4. After the fourth glass. Hinted that he and Octavia had begun to get on each other's nerves. Of course, he wouldn't say a word about her—they never will!—he simply INTIMATED that he had "made a mistake"—they always do!—and needed sympathy and distraction. Wanted to know if I thought it possible for two married people EVER to be perfectly happy together.

"Of course," I returned promptly, "provided they are NOT married to EACH OTHER!"

Now, I wonder if Marc Antony is going to flirt with me!

My True Love.

My true love from her pillow rose
And wandered down the summer lane.
She left her house to the wind's carouse,
And her chamber to the rain.

She did not stop to don her coat,
She did not stop to smoothe her bed—
But out she went in glad content
There where the bright path led.

She did not feel the beating storm,
But fled like a sunbeam, white and frail,
To the sea, to the air, somewhere, somewhere—
I have not found her trail.

George Cary Eggleston
THE PEERLESS WRITER OF SOUTHERN ROMANCES

Irene of the Mountains

A ROMANCE OF OLD VIRGINIA

Not for years has Mr. Eggleston, with all his successes in the field of Southern Fiction, written a story so lively in its movement and of such descriptive charms. There is excellent variety in this story, and the author is equally happy in describing the rough sports of the mountaineers around the cabin of "Judy Peters" and scenes at the Executive Mansion at Richmond.

SHOCKED WHEN BROWNS TURN TABLES ON THEM, WINNING TWO GAMES OF FRIDAY'S DOUBLE-HEADER

WARRIORS AT LAKE BEULAH ARE STIFF AND SORE FROM HARD PACE SET THEM BY ST. LOUIS U. COACH

MINORS WILL NOT YET GRAB MIGHTY RUBE

Waddell's Work Friday Gives Him New Lease on Life in Big Leagues.

By JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

RUBE WADDELL has many good games left in him. His performance of Friday afternoon was of the old-time style, and today Rube is again in the good graces of the St. Louis fans.

The big, erratic southpaw, who was on the verge of a tumble into the minor leagues, shut out the Chicago White Sox with three hits, and thus enabled the Browns to take both games of a double-header.

Rube pitched the best ball of the season and gloried in his work in much the same manner as in former years when he fanned out batters with regularity.

The Browns had won the first game nicely by hitting young Pitcher Scott hard and often. Bill Graham held the Chicagoans down well and the final score was 7 to 3.

In the second game Rube was sent to the slab and jeers arose from the grand stand and bleachers. Rube had been knocked out of the box so frequently of late that the fans had no confidence whatever in him.

The big fellow was nervous. It was a test game for him. Possibly his nerve was unsteady as he began the battle, for the first ball he threw cracked the batter in the ribs. But Rube knew he had to make good this time or he, too, like Dineen, would have to retire to keep in good standing, and Rube hasn't saved enough to retire on yet.

However, a double-play saved trouble for him in that inning. In the second inning somebody bunted a ball and Rube scooped it up nicely and threw out the runner. There were mock cheers from the stand, for Rube had failed so often this year in handling bunts.

But gradually a change came over the crowd and there were about 1800 fans present. Slowly it began to dawn upon them that Rube was pitching one of his old-time games. When six innings were over the Sox had made but one lonely hit. The jeers were changed to genuine applause, and at the close of each inning Rube had to doff his cap in recognition.

He was back in the spotlight again. He resumed his jolly manner of old. He hurled the ball harder and harder as the game progressed. It hopped away from the eager bats of the White Sox and Rube grinned with real personal satisfaction, the first he had felt in many weeks.

The big fellow was "right," and the Sox were helpless. They floundered and flogged at Rube's curves and shoots, for Billy Sullivan and his men are fighting desperately to finish in the first division.

But Rube only grinned through it all and his mates pounded home two runs off Pitcher Olmstead, a recruit for the Sox. Those two were enough and the game ended 2 to 0 in favor of the home team.

Rube isn't going to the minor league yet. He'll never go, as long as he pitches as he did against the Sox.

Notes of the Double Victory

Al Schweitzer played in left field in place of Stone, who felt the ill effects of a blow just below the head, which he received from a pitched ball last Sunday. Schweitzer had a splendid day and pulled his batting mark up materially. In the first game he hit safely three of his four times at bat. In the second game he hit safely twice and walked once in four times up.

The Browns will do well for the remainder of the season, according to Manager McAleer. The club is settling into its stride, the cripples are all getting well and the new infield arrangement seems satisfactory.

Hartzell won the second game for the Browns by hitting over the right fielder's head to the fence in the third inning. Schweitzer was on second and Hoffman on first at the time. It looked as though Messenger would catch the ball, and as no one was out, the base runners stuck to the bags. When it came down back of the fielder the base runners were off on the jump. Schweitzer was just able to get home and Hoffman dashed to third. Danny then got in on a sacrifice fly and those two runs were enough to win the game.

Two promising recruits joined the Browns Friday. They are Rose and Killifer, of the Houston pennant-winning club. Rose is a pitcher and Killifer his battery mate. Both are well spoken of.

Several of the new players will probably get an opportunity to show what they can do on the coming trip. The pennant-fighting clubs will doubtless lift a terrible cry at working recruits against teams that have a chance. But certainly the Athletics can make no remarks. Connie Mack threw the baseball world into dismay by sending a team of youngsters West a few years ago.

SMITH SWIMMING RELAY WINS RACE BY DEFAULT

The Smith Academy aquatic squad gained a leg on the John C. The Smith relay team composed of Harry Nugent, Harry Moriarty, Fred Berkley and Charley Youree swam over the course and claimed the race by default. The cup must be won three times to be taken out of competition. Last year Central High and the Smith Academy teams tied. On the swim-off the Central team won by a narrow mar-

OUT AFTER HIS FIFTH TENNIS TITLE.

DRUMMOND JONES, favorite to win the city tennis championship, which began today on the Triple A courts, will have won five titles if he should capture this, the closing event of the local season.

Jones won the championship in the Central, St. Joseph, Missouri Valley and Triple A tournaments this year.

He sustained two failures, one at Chicago, when he was put out of the third round in the Western, and at Omaha, where he succumbed to a Chicago expert.

Jones plays the best game of any player in St. Louis today, with the possible exception of Dwight Davis, donor of the famous Davis international trophy.

DRUMMOND JONES.

CUBS EXPECT TO CLIMB AT COST OF ROGER'S MEN

Double Victory of Friday Put Chicago a Notch Nearer the Fleeing Pirates.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 11.—Bachman was Manager Bresnahan's choice in the last game of the series, also the last game the Cardinals will play with the Cubs in Chicago this year.

Those Cubs have taken a new lease on life and are out for that fluttering rag. Right now the Cubs are figuring on winning it in St. Louis about Oct. 5, 6 and 7. You see they finish the schedule in the Mound City on these dates and they figure they will be so near the Pirates that the pennant will be decided in that series.

The Cardinals were whipped in two games Friday, scores 3 to 1 and 9 to 3. But at that they should have won one—the first. Beebe and Reulbach were the pitchers in this game. Beebe was there all the way through and errors gave the Cubs all their runs or aided them in getting the aforesaid tallies. The Cardinals got to Reulbach for six safe clouts, while Beebe held the Cubs to five.

One Barbeau was the hitting kid in the first session. He was at the plate four times. Once he drove out a double and the next time a single. Then he walked. The fourth time he was out.

Delehanty Helps Cubs.

But to get back to the errors. The Cubs scored their first because Hofman hit a single to center. Delehanty let the ball get away from him and it was good for two bases. Tinker singled and Hofman scored. The next man was out and the side was retired. Had Del handled that chance cleanly Hofman would have been marooned on third.

Chance, in the fourth, hit to Beebe, who could have thrown him out at first with anything near a decent toss. Instead he threw over Konetchy's head and the manager hiked to second. He also scored. In the eighth Sheckard reached first on a fielder's choice, went to second on an infield out, to third on a similar play and scored when Storke threw the ball away.

The second game was a slaughter of Cardinals. Harmon was on the slab for the Cardinals; the Cubs in the first smashed out six hits for a total of six runs. They followed this up by hammering the pitcher for three more hits and two additional runs in the second. Harmon then settled and held the Cubs until the eighth when Hofman drove a home run to deep center field.

BASEBALL NOTES.

The Pittsburg team has won every extra inning game they have participated in this season.

Cliff Curtis, once a member of the Cleveland team, but relegated to the minors, where he spent four seasons, is now with Boston, and is the only pitcher on that team who has beaten Pittsburg this season. He turned the trick last week.

GARDNER LEADS EGAN IN PLAY FOR GOLF TITLE

Latter, Weak From Fainting Spell, Is Below Form During First Nine Holes.

CHICAGO GOLF CLUB, WHEATON, Ill., Sept. 11.—Robert E. Gardner, the Yale field captain and a member of the Hinsdale Golf Club of Chicago, was 2 up on former National Champion H. Chandler Egan of Exmoor at the end of the morning round of 18 holes in the final for the national amateur golf championship.

Weak and trembling from a severe attack of indigestion, Egan played the first nine holes of the match in the poorest form he has played in the tournament and had his 19-year-old opponent taken advantage of his opponent, the game would have been much more one-sided.

Gardner missed four putts of less than five feet to win, falling down on the first, third, fourteenth and fifteenth greens, but atoning in a measure for the poor work, by holding a 15-foot putt on the eleventh green and one of 20 feet on the thirteenth, putting down the ball in 4 on the latter, two strokes under bogey.

Egan Very Erratic.

Egan, on the other hand, missed comparatively short putts on the second and ninth greens, drove badly a number of times, and failed to show his former remarkable ability to get the ball away from difficulty.

Gardner was 2 up at the turn, and made it 4 up by winning the tenth and eleventh holes in 2 to 3 respectively.

Gardner missed an opportunity to make it 5 up by missing a short putt on the fourteenth green, after a 75-yard approach shot, which laid his ball within a yard of the cup.

In the meantime Egan had settled down and was playing in real championship form. He won the fifteenth hole by running down a long putt, won the sixteenth with a beautiful 3, his approach from 50 yards away almost holing out and halved the seventeenth and eighteenth holes in par figures.

Egan, although evidently playing purely on his nerve, slightly outplayed Gardner during the latter part of the game, but his easy, powerful swing was lacking and it was apparent that his sickness and the strain of the last two days' play had told severely on him.

Theatrical Paradox.

From the Baltimore American.

"There is one contradictory thing actors seem to do."

"What is that?"

"The longer they are at one stand the more they consider it a run."

WARNER FINDS NEEDED PUNTER FOR ST. LOUIS U

BY S. W. ZINSER.

ARMY LAKE, Wis., Sept. 11.—Coach Warner of the St. Louis may not class with Cook and Peary as a discoverer, but in O'Reilly he has unearthed what the St. Louis University football squad needs badly—a good punter. Warner was trying all of the men out on punting during the practice, Friday, when he noticed O'Reilly's work.

O'Reilly gets the ball away fast and in fine form. He seems a sure catch and a bad pass does not seem to bother him. Just to see whether he could do as well in actual competition as in practice Warner had Lindsay pass the ball to O'Reilly several time, sending several of the biggest men on the squad charging at O'Reilly as soon as the ball was snapped.

O'Reilly did not get a bit rattled and each time sent the oval flying out for over 40 yards, high and in what would have been the center of the field. The coach was greatly pleased and put in quite a bit of his time helping O'Reilly punt. Punting promised to be one of the weak points of the eleven this season.

Men Hard Worked.

Any member of the St. Louis University squad nursing the idea that he was to have a nice pleasure jaunt of several weeks is finding that he is the victim of a delusion. When the men got up at 7 a. m. Friday they were a mighty sore bunch of boys, not in spirit, but physically. Two-mile runs, practicing falling on the ball while on the full run, chasing punts, pulling "tub" row boats and swimming twice a day is anything but play when the performance has to be repeated day after day.

S.S.S. PURELY VEGETABLE

The absolute vegetable purity of S. S. S. has always been one of the strongest points in its favor, and is one of the principal reasons why it is the most widely known and universally used of all blood medicines. A great many of the so-called blood purifiers are really nothing more than strong mineral mixtures which act so unpleasantly and disastrously on the delicate membranes and tissues of the stomach and bowels, that even if such treatment purified the blood, the condition in which the digestive system is left would often be more damaging to the health than the original trouble. Not so with S. S. S.—it is the greatest of all blood purifiers, and at the same time is an absolutely safe and harmless remedy. It is made entirely of the healing and cleansing extracts and juices of roots, herbs and barks, each of which is in daily use in some form by physicians in their practice. Years of work and research have proven S. S. S. to contain everything necessary to purify the blood and at the same time supply the system with the purest and best tonic effects. S. S. S. cures Rheumatism, Catarrh, Sores and Ulcers, Skin Diseases, Scrofula, Contagious Blood Poison and all other blood troubles, and it leaves the system in perfect condition when it has purified the blood. Book containing much valuable information on the blood and any medical advice desired sent free to all who write.

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

WRAY'S COLUMN.

NOW, what on earth is poor baseball manager going to do with a pitcher who gets knocked out of the box in 12 games and then comes back with a three-hit shutout victory? What is he expected to do with a club that one day drops a double-header and 48 hours later wins two games from the same team? What could you hope to do with a pitching staff that performed like a championship crowd on some occasions and then relapsed into worse than mediocrity?

The answer? Well, Manager McAleer will pay a premium for the correct solution.

Up at the Wheaton links, near Chicago, Saturday, two young men, one 19, the other 24 years of age, played in the final for the national golf championship. Friday two other mere lads, both under majority, competed against this pair in the semi-finals.

The ages of these young men should read lesson to St. Louis golf followers who have so long wondered at the failure of this great city to produce a player anything like national caliber.

The four young men who participated in the national semi-final were all developed on Chicago links. Chandler Egan, the oldest of the party, had won championships when he was under age, and so can be classed with the others in point of youthful development. What he who runs may be expected to note here is that youth in golf is the factor that counts more than anything else; and the reason that St. Louis has not made any great strides in golf is that it hinders rather than helps the development of the young player.

Decade Sees No Change.

IN 10 years who have been our best golf players? Why, who but the same men who monopolize honors now—the Stickneys, Harry Allen and Ralph McKittrick. The second division of players is just the same as it was then—Lambert, Potter, Kinney and the like. The new names and new faces to be observed are greatly the exception.

Why is it that in 10 years St. Louis seems unable to make progress? It is simply that the clubs here are jealous of permitting the use of their links to sons of senior members. Normandie is about the only club now exploiting the question of junior memberships. If the clubs of St. Louis would permit the youngsters to practice three or four years they would see a new set of leading golfers, with the probability strong that several would be of tournament caliber.

In Chicago the younger members have invariably outclassed their seniors, whose increasing displacement, due to advancing years, handicaps their golfing efforts. Far from being jealous of the improvement of the kids, however, in Chicago they even go so far as to arrange "father against son" tournaments.

Give the boys a chance.

One Healthy League.

WE will have to go to the youngsters for other sport than golf. About the only live school organization in the city with any permanence seems the Interscholastic League, which is now made up of seven members and will increase to eight. The three universities and one big college the city boasts would do well to go to this scholastic organization and gain a few pointers. Too bad that, with the materials for a fine city collegiate athletic and football league, there seems no way to bring together the jealous institutions of St. Louis.

Probably that good game of Friday will help Rube Waddell worry along for a number of bad ones without compelling them to bring out the official ax and show it to him. A little scare, now and then, is one of the best things in the world to restore a failing arm and to still a crying thirst.

While Bill Dinneen is waiting to find if he is to be appointed an umpire, why would it not be a good plan on the part of the big leagues, to develop all its umpires from failing veterans who have grown up in the game and know it thoroughly? Many umpires now in the various leagues of the country have never played baseball save of the pickup variety.

OLD SUBSCRIBER, who burns the midnight Union Electric once or twice a month in the endeavor to set us right as to the proper way of shouldering our duties, notes with regret, in about four sheets, that these columns seem to be favoring Bresnahan at the expense of McAleer. File No. 260, kick No. 20, from Old Subscriber's own pen, last year, notes with regret that we were favoring the Browns at the expense of the Cardinals.

Our own observation compels us to note with still greater regret there are times in the sporting writer's career in a town with two near tail-enders when he is compelled to favor both clubs with a trifling piece of his mind.

The greatest regret of all is that he cannot hand it all to both of them, and so get it out of his system.

OLD TROLLEY LEAGUE TO CUT SHORT ITS SEASON

The officers of the old Trolley League at a meeting held at the Marquette Hotel Friday night, decided to bring the season to a close one week from Sunday. This will cut the schedule short two games.

The Hyde Parks have already cinched the pennant. They will play the Mount Olive team at Kulage Park Sunday. The Mount Olive team, so far this season, had won two out of three games from the Hyde Parks and the champions will have to win Sunday to get an even break with the Miners on the season. One week from Sunday Staunton and Mount Olive play at Mount Olive. The new Trolley League's season will also end one week from Sunday, after which the Hyde Parks and Orphan Boys, winners of the pennants in their respective leagues, will meet in a series of games to decide the championship of Missouri-Illinois.

Wellington Lodge Picnic.

Wellington Lodge, Sons of St. George, will hold its annual picnic and athletic meet at Lake Ramona Park Saturday afternoon. Valuable prizes will be awarded. Among the contests will be a tug of war and a boat race on the lake.

Charlie Ebbets of the Brooklyn team has protested three games this season, and so far has lost two of his kicks. It is probable he will win the one when the Cubs won out after the time limit set on the game had expired.

$3.50 Recipe Cures Sick Men-----Free

Send Name and Address Today—You Can Have It Free and Be Strong and Ambitious.

I have in my possession a prescription for nervous debility, lack of strength, failing memory and lame back, that has cured so many worn and nervous men right in their own homes—without any additional help or medicine—that I think every man who wishes to regain his power and virility, quickly and quietly, should have a copy. So I have determined to send a copy of the prescription free of charge, in a plain, ordinary sealed envelope to any man who will write me for it.

This prescription comes from a physician who has made a special study of men and I am convinced it is the surest-acting combination for the cure of men ever put together.

I think I owe it to my fellow man to send them a copy in confidence so that any man anywhere who is sick and discouraged with repeated failures may stop drugging himself with harmful patent medicines, secure what I believe is the quickest-acting restorative, upbuilding, SPOT-TOUCHING remedy ever devised, and so cure himself at home quietly and quickly. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, 3907 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send you a copy of this splendid recipe in a plain ordinary envelope free of charge. A great many doctors would charge $3.00 to $5.00 for merely writing out a prescription like this—but I send it entirely free.

THE POST-DISPATCH'S DAILY RECORD OF MARKETS AND FINANCE

RECOVERY TOO RAPID, STOCKS LOSE ADVANCE

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

As there was reason to expect, today's stock market showed that yesterday's pace of recovery had been considerably too rapid. Many stocks opened at declines from yesterday's high closing and failed to regain the loss.

A few of the speculative footballs made a further forward burst—Union Pacific, for example, rising nearly 4 points over yesterday and Reading 1⅝—but even with these stocks the reactionary tendency soon displayed itself.

In the second hour all stocks declined continuously, Union Pacific among them, and closing were generally at substantial declines from yesterday.

The movement was not at all mysterious; "bear operators" who cover their contracts in great haste will presently have no more contracts to cover; other speculators who "buy on bad news" are in the habit of selling again when prices have recovered.

The more rapid and violent such recovery, the sooner such automatic readjustment of accounts makes itself felt.

The bank statement made a very weak showing; a loss of $11,340,000 cash, with only a $4,000,000 loan reduction brought surplus reserves as of yesterday nearly down to $3,000,000. This is actually lower than the surplus reported at this date, even in such years as 1907 and 1906.

The statement probably guarantees higher money next week, and it ought reasonably to guarantee also a return of calmness on the Stock Exchange. Another loss as heavy as this week's $.,000,000 shrinkage would wipe out the surplus reserve entirely and create a considerable deficit.

Probably this will not happen; but, since we are now at the height of the westward movement of currency, the situation does not admit of loan expansion for stock exchange operation, and it is likely to require some vigorous curtailment.

DETAILED REPORT OF THE DAY'S TRADE ON WALL STREET

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—The stock market showed some irregularity in the opening dealings today, but the prompt advance in the Union Pacific stocks shaped speculative sentiment. Union Pacific opened unchanged, but ran up 2 points to 209 within a few minutes. Reading rose 1 and Wabash preferred ⅝. St. Paul declined ⅝.

On Union Pacific's rise of 3⅞, there was selling of the general list which broke prices to a level below last night. Several stocks showed a loss of a point or more, including St. Paul, Missouri Pacific, Union Pacific preferred, Amalgamated Copper and others. Union Pacific fell back to below 208, but rose again above 210, and the general market steadied. American Ice lost 4⅜.

ST. LOUIS STOCK EXCHANGE.

Trading at Saturday's single session of the St. Louis Stock Exchange was in moderate volume only. Prices, however, were generally harder. United Railways issues and Candy common were fractionally higher. Quotations in the miscellaneous list were about unchanged.

Bank stocks were dull.

The transfer books of the St. Louis Union Trust Co. will close Monday, Sept. 13, at 3 p. m., and remain closed for 30 days, until the annual meeting of the stockholders on Oct. 14, 1909.

COFFEE MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Very large invoices of coffee came in by steamers from Brazil, some 166,000 bags in all. This will enlarge the local stocks to about 3,200,000 bags. Of course, it takes that amount from afloats, but it swells the immediate supplies very largely. The stocks here are now about even with the stock on July 1.

Meanwhile warehouse deliveries of coffee here, and supposedly in Europe, are very light. Of course, this is the small delivery season, but the withdrawals from warehouses thus far have been away behind those for the corresponding period last season.

EAST ST. LOUIS NOTES.

A divorce was granted by Judge Meyers Saturday morning to Mrs. Alzbeta Souchenek from Josef Souchenek on the allegation of nonsupport and cruelty. She was given the custody of her daughter, Victoria, 12 years old. The Soucheneks were married in 1895 in Dorover, Slavonia, Austria, and the wife testified that her husband had never supported her. She was obliged to hire herself out as a laborer in the fields. They lived in one room and had none of the comforts of life. In 1907 she came to East St. Louis, her passage being paid by her brother. She has since supported herself by washing.

An application for incorporation papers for the F. Pete Dengler Medicine Co. of East St. Louis was sent to the Illinois Secretary of State Friday. The capital stock is $100,000. The incorporators are F. Pete Dengler, August F. Wiemann and Dr. W. G. Catney, all of the East Side. It is planned to establish a plant in East St. Louis costing [illegible] for the manufacture of medicines, expected to be in operation in 60 [illegible]

HOGS—A very small supply of hogs arrived and none of them were extra good. The market was on about a steady basis, but it was a slow, dull trade most of the day, and a few loads of fair grade mixed hogs were left unsold when the market closed. The top of the market was $8.45, the same as on Friday, and the bulk of the desirable hogs sold at $8.10@8.30. The shippers and city butchers were right good buyers for the good hogs, but the packers were slow, as the supply was so small that they saw that they would be able to get but a few hogs, and therefore made little or no effort to do business. For the past two or three days buyers have been slow to take hold of the grassy and fair grade hogs and the range in prices is much wider now than usual.

SHEEP—The usual Saturday quietness prevailed in the sheep house, as there were no sheep on sale, and consequently no market. The market during the week was on the advance and closes with a gain of 25@35c on lambs and 25c on sheep. The best lambs toward the close of the week brought $7@7.50, best mutton sheep $4.50@4.75, stockers $2.50@3.75 and bucks $2.50@3.25. Common little thin lambs were very slow sale all week and showed no improvement whatever.

HORSES AND MULES—A nominal retail trade developed today, but transactions were of an unimportant character and the market closed on a quiet basis.

Mule receipts amounted to about 75 head today. The clearance was slow and the close of the period found a large supply of mules still in commission hands.

RAILROAD NEWS AND GOSSIP

Following closely on the substantial, although not complete victory of the bondholders of the Central of Georgia Railroad in the matter of interest on their income bonds, comes the announcement of an initial installment of 4 per cent interest on the $7,250,000 general mortgage 5 per cent income bonds of the Central New England Railway for the year ended July last.

It will be recalled that the suit brought by the bondholders of the Central of Georgia involved an accounting of the earnings of the road for the year 1906-07 for which period the first preference incomes received their full 5 per cent and the second preference bonds only 3.27 per cent. The company disputes the allegation that it is or has been able to pay full interest on its three classes of income bonds. The bondholders contend that including earnings from the Ocean Steamship Co. the road is fully able to do so.

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—It is officially estimated that the American Railway Association's car surplus bulletin Sept. 10 will show a further reduction of more than 40,000 cars, bringing the total surplus Sept. 1 to a little more than 100,000, or the smallest since last October.

"It is important to note," says Arthur Hale, "that this season's reduction is six weeks ahead of last year's, indicating that shortages this year will be greater."

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 11.—August passenger receipts of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co. increased about $91,000 over August, 1908, following an increase in July of $139,767, so that in the first two months of the current fiscal year the gross earnings gained $231,000 over the corresponding period of the previous year.

COTTON NERVOUS, PRICES ARE BARELY STEADY AT THE CLOSE

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 3@8c and quickly sold 8 to 10 points net higher on bullish cables, big English spot sales, covering and rather an active demand attributed to Memphis bulls. But as soon as the early buying movement had spent its force the advance was checked by realizing and the market subsequently sold off to within 3 or 4 points of last night's close, with the tone showing continued nervousness in spite of bullish Southern spot advices and encouraging trade reports.

The market closed barely steady with prices net 3@9 points lower. The close:

LONGS LIQUIDATE, WHEAT SELLS DOWN

Little Bearish Sentiment in Pit, but Profit-Taking Causes Fractional Recessions.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKETS IN BRIEF

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—The wheat market in general was rather weak during early trading today, but the September delivery proved an exception, being strong at the start, owing to renewed covering by shorts. There was considerable selling during the early part of the day, based on the theory that the market had been "overbought" on the previous session. The bearish showing of the official report on the Canadian crop also had some effect.

Opening quotations were ½c lower to ⅜@¾c higher, December being at 97⅝c to 97½c. After advancing to 97⅞c, the price for December reacted to 97½c.

The market was erratic during the last half of the day, particularly for the September delivery. Late in the session sentiment became bearish and prices reacted sharply, with December declining from 98¼c to 96¾c. The close was weak, with December off ⅞c, at 96⅞c.

The corn market was weak all day. The low point for December was 60c. The close was weak, with December ½@⅝c lower, at 60⅛c.

Oats were lower.

Favorable weather in all directions and continued good receipts caused the longs in the local wheat market to realize profit in a scattered manner Saturday and prices moved fractionally downward. There was no change in the situation and the market was again dull under an indifferent trade. There were several periods of steadiness during which fair rallies were made, but the tone was heavy in the main and somewhat lower levels prevailed a greater part of the day. The close was ½c to ⅜@⅞c down for the day.

Climatic conditions in the Northwest are still clear. Good progress is being made in threshing and the wheat continues to move to the markets in large volume. The tone in the markets of that region was weak today and somewhat of a reduction in cash premiums occurred. Reports from all over the winter wheat belt state that the ground is in excellent condition for plowing. Arrivals at winter wheat primaries are also quite heavy.

The cash situation is still strong, and, with congestion still very apparent, there is little bearish sentiment in the pit, but following the almost uninterrupted advance all week, the market had become rather overbought and long wheat came out rather freely. Cables were higher, but world's shipments are expected to be again heavy, and prospects are for continued large offerings from Russia. Dullness was the principal feature of the domestic situation. There were practically no export bids and the flour trade was dull.

Prices opened easier, rallied to about steady levels and again sold down. Toward the last of the short session, quite sharply lower levels were in force.

Sept. wheat opened ¼c lower at $1.03, advanced to $1.03¼ and declined to $1.02¾. Dec. wheat opened ½c lower at 99c, advanced to 99⅜@99½c and declined to 98⅝@98¾c. May wheat opened ⅝c lower at $1.01⅝, advanced to $1.02¼ and declined to $1.01¼@1.01⅜.

There was little life to the late trading and conditions did not exchange to any extent. Prices dropped an additional fraction, after which a steady tone set in. The close was in a well supported position, although practically at the low points. September wheat closed at $1.02¾, December wheat at 98⅝c sellers and May wheat at $1.01¼@1.01⅛ bid. Cash wheat, in good demand, ruled strong. Seaboard clearances of wheat and flour for the day were 144,000 bu.

Primary receipts of wheat were 1,398,685 bu, with shipments of 735,255 bu, and local receipts were 104,523 bu, with shipments of 145,420 bu.

Increased country offerings and the depression in wheat caused an easier tone in the corn market. Trading was light and prices moved in a slow and narrow manner. The close was ¼c to ⅜@½c lower for the day. Cash corn was quiet and about steady. Cables on corn closed ⅛d higher. Seaboard clearances of corn for the day were 5000 bu.

Primary receipts of corn were 501,336 bu, with shipments of 567,760 bu, and local receipts were 33,128 bu, with shipments of 24,260 bu.

There was very little trade in oats. A steady undertone was apparent, however, and the close was unchanged to ¼c higher for the day on near options, though the only sale of May was at a loss of ¼c. Cash oats were firm and higher. Seaboard clearances of oats for the day were 11,000 bu.

Primary receipts of oats were 587,329 bu, with shipments of 315,833 bu, and local receipts were 52,800 bu, with shipments of 24,640 bu.

CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION OF THE INCORPORATION OF ST. LOUIS

During the week of Oct. 3d to 9th inclusive more than 500 Mayors of American Cities will be present in this city to participate in the ceremonies celebrating the Centennial of the Incorporation of St. Louis. Thousands of dollars will be expended in making the event as big a success relatively as the World's Fair, which was a world beater. Here is the program. Four grand pageants illustrating the City's history, utilities, educational merits and industries; spherical balloon races, dirigible balloon contests, aeroplane trials, Veiled Prophet's parade and ball, new municipal building corner stone laying ceremonies; reunions and Jubilee meetings of religious, civic, professional and benevolent organizations; athletic tournaments at the new Fairground Park; illuminations and fireworks. The crest of prosperit's wave will be sweeping through this great city. Get your craft in shape to ride abreast of it. If you need help to do this, telephone your want ads to the Post-Dispatch—your credit is good if you rent a phone.

DIVORCEE SPENT $75,000 ALIMONY IN FEW MONTHS

Miss Frances Rush, Ex-Wife of Harry Thaw's Cousin, Made the Money Fly.

MR. BROWN HELPED HER

She Has Burned Up $500,000 During Her Short Young Life.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—"Girls will be girls. They have to sow their wild oats as well as the boys. It takes a woman to make money fly. They can make Mr. Brewster of 'Brewster's Millions' look like a piker."

This is the opinion of Miss Frances Rush, the divorced wife of Charles Harper Thaw, cousin of Harry K. Thaw, who was sued in the Debtors' Court today for a $75 jewelry bill. The case was continued on the request of the plaintiff, after the latter had failed to bring into evidence any property that might be seized.

Miss Rush admits spending the $75,000 alimony she secured from Thaw in a few months. She says she also has assisted in spending $500,000 during her gay young life.

A Brewster in Petticoats.

"I guess I'm a feminine Brewster," said Miss Rush after she had eluded a bailiff by running away in an automobile, only to be caught later at the entrance to the Auditorium Annex. "When I look back and review the manner in which my $75,000 melted away and slipped through my fingers I find myself considering Brewster a veritable amateur in the spending line.

"Why, if I had had $10,000,000 I could have rid myself of it legitimately without half the trouble that the man in the book experienced. For some time now I have been living on the bounty of my relatives and friends."

"What became of the $75,000?" she was asked.

"To begin with," she replied, as tears welled into her eyes, "I indulged my propensities for costly living. Last winter I paid $50 a day for a suite in a Los Angeles hotel. Then, on the advice of supposed friends, I took flyers in the stock market. In New York I also lived in a little more than ordinary comfort.

"I am a poor financier and I did not realize that my expenditures were so greatly exceeding my income until suddenly I awoke to the fact that I was without a cent in the world."

Thirty-five thousand dollars of her alimony, Miss Rush said, went to her attorney, Adolph Marks. A large sum of money, she said, was spent traveling and in betting on horseraces.

Has Spent $500,000.

Miss Rush said she had spent about $500,000 in her life. After receiving the $40,000 left from her divorce settlement she said she turned the money over to Walter H. Brown to take care of for her.

"I married Thaw in 1900 and got a divorce in 1905," she said. "Brown and I then went to San Francisco and from there to Los Angeles. We made a trip to China and then came back to New York.

"In the course of my travels I spent from $50 to $100 a day. I don't know where else the money went, except that I bet on the races at Oakland or Ingleside, I forget which, and in New York. I put up $1500 on one horse in California and lost that and $500 on another horse in New York that lost."

"Where is Mr. Brown?" asked Attorney Nathan Neufeld for the plaintiff.

"I think he is in Europe," was the reply. "When all my money was gone we had a sort of settling up, orally, making a sort of account of where the money had gone, and then separated. If I had some more money and could get Mr. Brown back I would do the same thing over again."

Miss Rush said she could not remember much of what had taken place while she was in California, because at that time she "was drunk a good deal."

Never Did Wake Up.

"Did you wake up when you got to New York?" asked Attorney Neufeld.

"I never did wake up," was the reply, although she declared she had stopped drinking.

She admitted that she had met Charles Harper Thaw at Atlantic City while in bathing, and that a large wave had thrown her into the arms of Thaw, who proposed marriage to her on the spot.

"I am a salt-water mermaid," she said. "I don't like fresh water. I came from Leavenworth, Kan., where all the pretty girls come from. There is some dispute as to whether Fay Templeton came from there, but Vivian Blackburn and Hilda Clark came from that place. My father was O. P. Rush, a pioneer of Kansas. He was a very wealthy man, being a miller and coal mine owner."

When asked how a girl could spend so much money, Miss Rush said:

"Oh, you know, girls will be girls—diamonds, automobiles and the horse races are simply irresistible. It is no trick at all to spend $1000 a day. I am poor now, however, and simply can't pay that jeweler's bill."

Miss Rush did not look like a person with an imminent prospect of going out with an accordion and a tin cup. Diamonds glinted from her fingers and her stately figure was encased in a faultless tailor-made gown.

Broom-Corn at $200 Per Ton.

ARCOLA, Ill., Sept. 11.—Two hundred dollars a ton for broom-corn is now predicted by men in the trade. Today farmers have refused $170 for corn in the field. The price last Tuesday was $185. The buyers are frantic, while the sellers are standing pat.

$100,000 IN GEMS STOLEN IN PITTSBURG

Robbery in Spring Just Reported by Police Seeking 10¼ Karat Diamond.

By Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Sept. 11.—The biggest diamond and jewel robbery perhaps in the history of the country occurred in Pittsburg early last spring, but the police are only now making it public.

The value of the gems stolen amounts to about $100,000, yet the police refuse to make known the name of the person robbed. They admit, however, that they are on the right track of the man or men who stole one diamond valued at $10,000 and enough other jewelry and precious stones to total the $100,000.

It is thought that when the house which is said to be situated just outside the city, was robbed last February, while the family was at home.

The big diamond, weighing 10¼ karats, on account of its size and and its description, is expected to be a white elephant on the hands of those who took it.

Numerous jewels valued at $5000 each are on the list.

CONTRACTOR IS UNABLE TO FIND TRACE OF WIFE

Chum and Barber, Themistocles Piliotis, Also Missing Since Monday.

Samuel M. Metz of 4232 John avenue has not had any word from his pretty young wife, Katharine, who disappeared Monday. Miss Margaret Piliotis of 510 South Broadway, a chum of Mrs. Metz, and her brother, Themistocles, are also missing.

Mrs. Metz left the home of her mother, Mrs. Mary Franch, of 406 Clark avenue, with Miss Piliotis, who was formerly a governess in the family of Hector M. E. Pasmozoglu, the Greek Consul in St. Louis. Themistocles Piliotis formerly had a barber shop on South Broadway, but sold it 10 days ago.

The missing barber boarded with Mrs. Metz's mother for several years. Mrs. Metz was stylishly dressed in a gray princess gown and a big tan straw hat, trimmed with a velvet band and daisies when she was last seen by her mother. Her husband is a contractor.

WILBUR WRIGHT TO FLY ACROSS NEW YORK CITY

Will Sail in Mysterious Aeroplane at Hudson-Fulton Celebration.

DOUBT ABOUT CURTISS

Mayor Calls for Decorations in American and Dutch Colors.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Wilbur Wright will sail one of his aeroplanes over a portion of New York City for the first time on Sept. 21 or 22. The trip will be only a short one, a tuning-up spin in preparation for the flights he is expected to make during the Hudson-Fulton celebration. He will start from Governor's Island and probably circle about the bay and the lower part of Manhattan.

Word was received by the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Committee yesterday that Wright would be here with his aeroplane on Sept. 18. The training of the two army officers, Lieuts. Lahm and Fulois, as aviators, has been postponed, and the shed at College Park, Washington, is not yet finished. Because of this Wright's plans have been changed somewhat and he will arrive here several days before the celebration begins. The aeroplane he is to use here will be taken directly to Governor's Island.

When It Comes, None Knows.

There is something of a mystery about the plane in question. It is not the Government machine, and, it is understood, it is not a new one, built especially for the flights here. Where it comes from no one seems to know as yet. It will be housed while here on Governor's Island, where two sheds are being erected on the new parade ground.

Eventually Wright is expected to make a flight up the East River to the Bronx, across the city and back again along the line of the Hudson to Governor's Island.

No Word From Curtiss.

Despite reports to the contrary, there is considerable doubt as to whether Glenn H. Curtiss is to fly here during the celebration or not. It has been found impossible to get any word from him on the subject. He is in Italy. Mr. Curtiss' partner, A. M. Herring, said today:

"I am greatly surprised to hear that Curtiss has a contract to fly here during the celebration. If Curtiss has agreed to fly he will fly, and that is all there is to it."

Mayor McClennan has issued a proclamation calling on all good citizens to decorate for the celebration, using the national colors and the Dutch colors—orange, white and light blue.

Eighty-five thousand of the official medals of the Celebration Commission have been struck off. They will be purchasable within a few days at prices ranging from 10 cents to $10, and will be splendid souvenirs of the occasion. The obverse of the medal is devoted to Hendrick Hudson and the reverse to Fulton.

Some of these medals, three inches in diameter, are to be struck by Tiffany in Alaskan gold for presentation to the heads of nations sending naval vessels to the celebration. For the members of the commission and high official guests silver medals, four inches in diameter, struck in silver, will be used.

MISS ELKINS AND ABRUZZI CERTAIN TO MEET IN PARIS

May Be Secretly Married at the American or Italian Embassy There.

"LOVE FOUND A WAY"

Talk of Renouncing Title and Remaining in Navy as Admiral.

Special Cablegram to the Post-Dispatch.

Copyright, 1909, by the Press Pub. Co. (New York World).

PARIS, Sept. 11.—Miss Katherine Elkins and the Duke of the Abruzzi are expected to meet in Paris, probably tomorrow. Miss Elkins is already here and the Duke is expected at any moment. He left Naples early this week on a steamer bound for Marseilles.

Great secrecy attends his movements, and at the Italian embassy all knowledge of his presence or plans is denied. An attempt is made to make light of the romance between the American girl and the cousin of Italy's King.

Three members of the Elkins family are now in Paris. Stephen B. Elkins Jr. arrived from Biarritz yesterday and went to the Hotel Ritz. His sister is with their mother at the Hotel du Rhin, across the Place Vendome from the Ritz, but no announcement has been made of her arrival.

The Post-Dispatch correspondent this afternoon asked to see Miss Elkins, but he was informed that "Katherine is denying herself to all callers." A note requesting merely a statement of her plans during her stay in Paris was sent to her, but was returned with the answer that she could see no one.

Elkins Family There.

The arrival of the Elkins family here came soon after the published announcement that the Duke of the Abruzzi had left Naples for Marseilles. Miss Elkins had been in Europe all summer with her mother and it has been generally believed that she was waiting for the Duke to return from the Himalayan expedition.

It has long been hinted that some settlement of the romantic attachment between the two was about to be made which would be equally acceptable to the King of Italy and the Elkins family. According to reports in circulation here the Duke may renounce his title, retaining only his rank in the navy. It is even said that King Victor Emmanuel is about to promote him to be Admiral.

Secret Marriage Possible.

Some people go so far as to say that the Duke Abruzzi and Miss Katherine Elkins may be married secretly in Paris at the American or Italian embassy, but knowledge of any such plan is emphatically denied.

It is certain, though, that the couple will meet secretly here. They may go from here to London, where they have a warm friend in Lady Granard, who was Miss Beatrice Mills.

It is impossible to learn the plans of the love-crossed couple definitely, but their prospective meeting here has revived all the old reports that love has found a way to overcome the opposition of the throne and that Abruzzi, by his patient devotion, has won a victory over Victor Emmanuel and the Dowager Queen Margherita.

NEITHER OF HIS WIVES WANTS TO PRESS CHARGES

First Mrs. Rhodes Fears She Might Jeopardize Insurance on Husband; Bride Says She Loves Him.

William H. Rhodes, who left a wife and seven children at Danville, Ill., and married Mrs. Mamie Burgess, a divorcee with a son 7 years old, has confessed to the police that he married the second Mrs. Burgess in violation of the laws against bigamy.

"I admit everything," he said, "and the only reason I can assign is that I love Mrs. Burgess."

Rhodes, who is a printer, was arrested on complaint of his second wife, with whom he lived at 3692 Laclede avenue. She became suspicious of him when she found a letter addressed to "My dear Dad," and signed "Your son, Charlie."

She asked Rhodes about the letter, but he refused to discuss it. Then she wrote to the Chief of Police at Danville and learned from him that Rhodes' wife and children were living at 139 Logan street in that city and that the man she (Mrs. Burgess-Rhodes) believed to be her lawful husband had been married to another woman for 32 years. She then obtained a warrant against Rhodes.

Hopes New Wife Will Prosecute.

The Danville Mrs. Rhodes says that she will not prosecute her husband, because, by doing so, she might jeopardize the insurance she has carried on his life for 23 years. She has written, however, that she hopes Mrs. Burgess-Rhodes will prosecute.

Mrs. Burgess-Rhodes says she is reluctant to prosecute because she loves Rhodes and he has been "good" to her in every way except not telling her before they were married that he had a living wife.

Married 10 Months Ago.

Rhodes formerly was secretary of the Typographical Union in Danville. His accounts became involved and he left there as soon as they were straightened. He met Mrs. Burgess in Terre Haute and they were married in St. Louis by Justice Martin Moore ten months ago.

SOLDIER ROBBED, THEN HELD FOR HAVING PISTOL

When the police of the Page Boulevard Station searched Ferdinand Hecker, 76 years old, a Civil War veteran, after he reported he had been robbed, they found a revolver in his pocket, and decided to send him to the Police Court on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. They arrested four men on a charge of robbing Hecker, but as he was not certain of the identification, they were released.

Hecker told the police he had been in St. Louis only a week and that Friday night he started out into the country to get work on a farm. He want to sleep in a box car at the Wabash tracks and the Olive Street road.

Four men entered the car and robbed him of $14, he said. They overlooked the revolver and $4.

Hecker has been living at different soldiers' homes, but said the temptations to drink was so great about the homes that he left to shift for himself. He receives a pension of $20 a month. He served during the war, he said, as a corporal in Co. D, Nineteenth Infantry.

Beware of Imitations

Cheap Substitutes and "Just as Good As."

Unscrupulous dealers, mindful only of profit and caring nothing for the health of their patrons, are offering for sale low-grade, impure whiskey, which they tell you is as "good as Duffy's."

It is a cheap concoction and fraud, intended to deceive the people. Of course, when a remedy has been before the public so long, has been prescribed and used by the best doctors and in all the prominent hospitals, and has carried the blessing of health into so many thousands of homes as Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has, imitations are bound to arise. But they can imitate the bottle and label only—no one can imitate the contents.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is an absolutely pure distillation of malted grain; great care being used to have every kernel thoroughly malted, thus producing a liquid food, requiring no digestion, in the form of a medicinal whiskey, which is one of the most effective tonic stimulants and invigorators known to science; its palatability and freedom from injurious substances render it so that it can be retained by the most sensitive stomach.

BEWARE OF FRAUDS!

Any firm that will sell imitation or substitution goods will sell impure goods. The firm that is dishonest in one thing would not hesitate to be dishonest in another. Whenever you see imitation and substitution goods offered for sale by a firm, beware of anything and everything put up by that firm. You endanger your own life and the lives of your family and friends by dealing with them.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

is sold in sealed bottles only—never in bulk. A fac-simile of the genuine bottle is printed here so that you may easily recognize it. It is our own patented bottle—round, amber colored and with the name "Duffy Malt Whiskey Company" blown in the glass. The trade-mark—the Old Chemist's Head—is an engraved paper seal. Be certain this seal is not broken.

It is the only whiskey recognized by doctors everywhere as a family medicine. At all druggists, grocers, dealers, or direct, $1 a bottle.
